Congress Gets Ready for New Tax Bill

TREASURY NOW DRAFTING EVEN TOUGHER LEVY

House Expected to Put OK on 'Victory Tax' Today, Pass Legislation This Week.

COMPULSORY SAVING NEXT

Senate and House Conferees at Work Ironing Out Minor Differences.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The long-debated $8,000,000,000 tax bill was near enactment today, but congressmen and tax experts agreed that the really tough tax problems had been left for the next tax bill which the treasury is preparing.

House acceptance of the senate's five per cent victory tax, levied on the earnings of all who make more than $12 a week, was forecast as senate-house conferees prepared to adjust differences over the pending bill.

Chairman Walter F George, D., Ga., of the senate finance committee said he hoped to start conferences with the house tomorrow and complete work this week on the history-making measure

Chairman Robert L. Doughton, D., N. C., of the house ways and means committee indicated that it was a question of accepting the senate's victory tax—designed to raise $3,650,000,000 annually — or finding the lost revenue elsewhere, with no apparent place to turn but a sales tax, which neither house has approved.

The senate passed the bill Saturday, 77 to 0, but left several important questions for the next tax bill which Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., has announced will follow immediately. Those problems include.

1. Compulsory savings. The pending bill creates a committee to study the problem and recommend legislation, which will have to be dovetailed with taxes.

2. The treasury's "spendings" tax, involving the compulsory savings principle, which the treasury has indicated it would renew in the next bill Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D, Wyo., served no-

Substitute Rayon For Cotton As Fabric In Tires

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Rubber Director William M. Jeffers told a congressional committee today that the war production board has ordered substitution of rayon for cotton as the fabric in tires.

Testifying before the senate agriculture committee, Jeffers revealed that WPB three weeks ago ordered expansion of the rayon industry in order to produce sufficient material to meet the new demands.

Defending the decision in the face of angry denunciations by cotton-state committee members, he declared that "we have been gambling with this war too damned long."

"I don't intend to be influenced by anybody, any time, anywhere," he asserted.

It was Jeffers' first appearance before a congressional committee WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson also was scheduled to testify, but he did not appear.

Committeemen, led by Chairman Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, D., S. C., questioned Jeffers so fast that he frequently could not answer one inquiry before another was asked.

Jeffers defended the shift to rayon on grounds that tests by

FREMONT —(U.P.)— Charles B. Gierhart and Cornelia Williams of Ashland, O., today began sentences of one to five years for arson after being convicted of burning property of Martin Schwartz at Hessville.

Gierhart was imprisoned at Ohio penitentiary while Mrs. Williams was placed in the Marysville reformatory. Their appeal was denied by the Ohio supreme court 10 days ago.

City Joins In Columbus Day Tribute

K. of C. Council Pledges War Aid; President In Victory Message.

Columbus day generally was observed in Mansfield today in keeping with state and national attitudes inspired by wartime conditions.

Parochial school and banks were closed. City Hall closed at noon but otherwise commemoration of the discovery of America was confined to a clear-cut statement from Mansfield council, Knights of Columbus, concerning that 'society's war views.

Victory for allied forces is certain, the Knights declare, and it will be necessary to whip the totalitarian idea in the United States as a post-war measure. The lodge backs the government 100 per cent in all war efforts, urges full participation in civilian defense programs, urges a greatly reduced social activity, and will invest all available funds in war bonds.

In Washington, President Roosevelt voiced his praise of the intrepid explorer. "In the wake," the president said "of his courageous and unprecedented voyage there came to the Americas the seeking people of many countries—people who sought liberty, democracy, religious tolerance, the fuller life

"Our cause is not only liberty for ourselves but liberation for others. An American victory will be a United Nations victory and a victory for oppressed and enslaved people everywhere. We have the faith. Deeds will implement it."

The president called the voyage of Columbus the first American experiment—a bold and successful one. "Our immigrant ancestors, yours and mine, made it successful," the chief executive declared.

"We are in the midst of mankind's greatest war to determine whether the march of progress shall proceed or be halted by the totality of conquest," the president said

Discovery of America the president said, opened a great expanse where new beginnings could be made, where men could steer their courses free of tyranny and the encompassment of outworn institutions.

CLAIMS TITLE

Johnston Says Pastor's Now Champ as Louis Quits.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Jimmy Johnston, manager of Bob Pastor of New York, announced today that he is claiming the heavyweight championship for his fighter, now that Joe Louis has retired, and will defend it against all comers.

"I will admit that Louis beat Pastor twice," said Johnston "but he is through and there isn't another fighter who can beat Pastor. To prove this, my fighter will meet any challenger in the world and would like Billy Conn first to prove that Conn had no right to fight Louis for the title."

Pastor is not in the army but Conn is, holding the rank of corporal.

Victory Banners To Be Awarded Along With News-Journal Trophy To Schools Getting Biggest Heaps During Week.

More than 7,000 pupils in Mansfield schools renewed their scrap drive today with a double incentive to pile up record heaps of scrap metal and rubber at their school buildings.

In addition to the trophy offered by The News-Journal for the best per capita pupil collection this week, Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller said he would award an "S" banner to the school with the best showing during the two-week period ending next Friday night

The News-Journal trophy will go to the school which collects the biggest pile of scrap per pupil this week only. Previous collections will not be counted when the totals are compiled for the trophy award

All schools in the city—public, parochial, and Country Day—joined today in the scrap drive Heads of all the schools pledged their cooperation and said they would be right in the midst of the competition for the awards

Both the trophy and the "S" banner offered by Supt. Miller will go to the building, or buildings, which make the best showing on the basis of their enrollments. The "S" banner will be similar to the "E" banners awarded to the army and navy contractors.

Most of the schools conducted aggressive campaigns last week, covering much of the territory in their areas, but the pupils were ready to go over the same ground again if necessary to find every available piece of scrap.

Senior high pupils worked hard over the week-end and now have more than two tons of scrap piled in the stadium. They expect to have a much larger pile by the end of this week

The 44 pupils at the Country Day school, from the kindergarter to the fifth grade have organized into Junior Commandos to compete for the News-Journal trophy. Frank Black, nine-year-old pupil will head the organization as first lieutenant.

Promotions will be based on the

McSweeney Speech Tomorrow Warms Up Richland Campaign

With the November election only three weeks away, the two gubernatorial nominees began intensive schedules today which will bring both to Mansfield for addresses within the next two weeks.

First to reach Mansfield will be John McSweeney, Democratic nominee, who has been booked as the principal speaker at a county-wide rally at 8 p. m. Tuesday in Senior high school auditorium. Other Democratic candidates for state, district, and county offices will be introduced.

Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican candidate for re-election, who was in Cleveland today, will speak at a G. O. P. rally in Mansfield Friday night, Oct. 23. Appearing with him will be Congressman J. Harry McGregor of the 17th district, also a candidate for re-election.

McSweeney was in Columbus for a rally today. Tomorrow he will visit Worthington, Westerville, Sunbury, Delaware, Cardington, Galion Crestline, and Ashland before coming to Mansfield for the night meeting. He will campaign in western Ohio Wednesday and invade the southwestern corner of the state Thursday.

Meanwhile, Darrell S. Jones, state Democratic chairman, urged Young Democrats to greater campaign efforts "so that the youth of the nation now serving in the armed forces will be assured that their interests are being promoted back home."

CITY, COUNTY RENTS STAY AT MARCH 1 LEVEL

Mansfield-Ashland, Richland-Crawford Areas Placed In 'Frozen' Areas.

ORDERS EXTENDED

Increases Since March To Result in Reductions Starting Nov. 1.

Rents in the Mansfield-Ashland and Richland-Crawford county areas today were placed under federal control and will be frozen at the level prevailing last March 1, dispatches from Washington said.

The freezing order will become effective Nov. 1 when landlords who have raised their tenants' rent since March will be required to reduce them to the level existing seven months ago.

Already in effect in many vital defense areas in the nation, the freezing order was extended to 97 more defense-rental sections in the nation, including nine in Ohio. The extension brings a total of 70,000,000 Americans under provisions of the Office of Price Administration program.

Previously excluded from the government rent-control district, Mansfield was brought into the defense-rental program when most of the city's industries converted to war production While there has been no general increase in residential rents in Mansfield the order is expected to prevent increases.

The rent orders applies to houses, apartments, hotel suites, and furnished rooms Only exceptions will be in instances where the landlord has made substantial improvements in accommodations and spent considerable money to make the quarters more convenient.

The OPA said it would operate some of the new areas from offices already established in nearby defense rental areas Directors for the new areas will be chosen after this month, the OPA added

TALKS ON DRAFT

Roosevelt Goes on Air at 10 For Fireside Chat.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The White House indicated today that a presidential fireside chat tonight would touch the issues of a second front and the drafting of young men of 18 and 19.

President Roosevelt gave over most of the day to finishing the address, scheduling only one conference. Significantly, that was with Paul V. McNutt, in charge of war manpower mobilization, and with Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early indicated that the problem of manpower would be covered in the address, along with selective service.

Asked about the drafting of 18 and 19-year-olds, he replied, "I think you'll find that in there."

Nazi Position At Stalingrad Grows Graver

Russian Flank Attack Northwest of Ruined City Gains, So Does Mozdok Counter-Attack On Caucasus Enemy.

(By Associated Press)

At the end of seven weeks of terrific attack and epic defense, the indomitable defenders of Stalingrad have forced the Germans by the sheer tax on flesh and blood to halt mass troop assaults on that ruined but strategically valuable city.

With signs of a great defensive victory emerging, the Russians themselves reported capture of "advantageous positions" in their flanking action northwest of Stalingrad—to the further peril of the immobile Germans—as well as gains by counter-attack in the Mozdok area of the Caucasus.

Adolf Hitler's time table for 1942 seems to have been beautifully scrambled.

With a mixture of belligerence and confidence in the future Prime Minister Churchill told an Edinburgh audience today that Russia, China, the United States and Britain were moving 'steadily onward from strength to strength" while Hitler's "prospects have darkened to an immeasurable degree."

Churchill pictured August and September as months of great strategic developments in the Allies' favor:

1.—They were "the least bad months' of the year for Allied shipping losses he said, and new construction outweighs the German U-boat successes

2—They "marked the definite growth of Allied war superiority" with the RAF dropping its "greatest tonnage" of bombs on Germany.

3—They brought "the most numerous safe arrivals of U. S. troops in the British Isles."

For the third day the Germans and their puppets were largely confined to artillery and air assaults on Stalingrad. The Russian communique said that artillery and mortar duelling continued in the immediate Stalingrad area. The Germans actually had won positions inside the Volga city but failed to reach the river.

The reiterative thump of the German minenwerfer and the grumble of siege cannon while Axis troops dug in to hold their Stalingrad wedges were nothing like the fuehrer intended when on Sept. 30 he declared:

"We shall take Stalingrad, you may depend on that."

Even then 15 days had passed since the Germans announced that the battle of Stalingrad had entered its "final phase."

Typical of the price levied by the Russians on the Germans' mad effort to save the fuehrer's face at Stalingrad was today's communique report that two com-

U. S. Experts Believe Enemy Girds For Three-Pronged Attack on Islands.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Japan appeared to be preparing a pincers offensive today in an attempt to isolate and then crush the U. S marine garrison on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons.

Military experts, piecing together information contained in official communiques and dispatches from the southwest Pacific, anticipated a three-pronged move against American positions on the island—two by land and one by sea

On land, these experts said, the steadily reinforced Japanese are expected to approach the American base from the south and northwest. That base, which includes the fine airfield originally built by the Japanese and now used by American aircraft, is located on the northern side of the island.

The move from the seaward or northern side probably would not be attempted until the land offensive is well underway, these observers suggested It would necessitate strong Japanese air support, particularly to knock out the airfield—a job enemy bombers

War Truck Trap Delays Materials In Ohio, Charge

CLEVELAND — (AP) — A war truck "trap" at Willoughby is delaying delivery of vital materials, the Cleveland regional office of defense transportation declared today.

C. R. Allen, regional ODT head, said the drivers of five trucks carrying war materials had been arrested in the Lake county village during the past four days for hauling loads slightly in excess of state limitations.

Asserting the village is the only community in the country not cooperating with ODT recommendations on truck loads, Allen warned that unless authorities agreed to comply he would 'report the situation to Washington with the recommendation that action be taken."

Youngstown Being Robbed of Workers, USES Complains.

YOUNGSTOWN—(AP)—A U. S. employment official says labor "piracy," the draft and the lure of government jobs is taking 2,000 workers a month from Youngstown steel mills and other factories and threatens to impair war production.

Herbert R Weller, local USES manager, reported yesterday that industries were losing 500 men a month to out-of-town factories, another 500 to the Ravenna arsenal and other government-controlled projects and 1,000 men monthly through selective service.

He said workers were being lured to outside industries by promise of higher pay and warned that such 'piracy" is punishable by heavy fines and imprisonment.

RUSSIANS GAIN IN STALINGRAD AND CAUCASUS

Begin to Push Offensive as Germans Fail In Effort To Storm Volga City.

panies of German troops were wiped out when the Germans attacked the outskirts of a Stalingrad workers' settlement.

This German action nowise ranked with the strength of previous mass asaults.

For the first time in weeks the Stalingrad battle took a secondary place in the Russian communique — the Germans had been playing it down for days. The Russian communique took a broad approach by reporting continuing action on the whole Russian-German front.

In the Caucasus the Germans still were striving to take the valuable Grozny oil fields southeast of Mozdok, but the Russians reported a counterstroke with which they disrupted the German offensive and recaptured defense positions.

The Russians were reported advancing also in the zone southeast of Novorossisk, Black Sea port which the Germans now hold, storming a town house-by-house after the German garrison was surrounded. American-made jeeps were delivering anti-aircraft guns to the Caucasus front.

The Germans said that Russian forces encircled on the road to Tuapse, another Caucasus port on the Black Sea, southeast of Novorossisk, had been "annihilated."

The Hitler command also reported that a Russian group was "annihilated" in Stalingrad. That was the only direct mention of Stalingrad.

On the Volga, its communique said, a medium-sized vessel was sunk by shellfire and airmen "continued the destruction of an important railway line east of the river Volga."

The newest developments in the air war include yesterday's daylight forays by the British against targets in northwestern Germany, principally Hannover, and in occupied France. It was the 43rd attack on Hannover, a railway and industrial center of about a half-million population.

A small number of German raiders made their first night attack on Britai since Sept. 26 when they bombed scattered localities on the northeast coast last night, causing some casualties and damage.

The war in North Africa remained essentially a race between the Axis and the United Nations to build up the striking force and reservoir of supplies necessary for an offensive step. Designed to disrupt the Axis preparations, the Allied air offensive continued.

The next battle of North Africa promises to be a crucial test of the respective merits of American and German arms.

As for the present land action, the British reported only patrol activities and Axis reports agreed. In the air, however, heavy bombers attacked Bengasi, Axis Libyan port, on Saturday and Rommel's intermediate supply base, Tymbaki, Crete, on Saturday night.

Churchill's Edinburgh speech today was a broad review of the war and included the statement that "the Australians, with their American allies, have made a good advance in New Guinea."

He referred to the pursuit of Japanese forces which only a few days ago were less than 40 miles from Port Moresby, Allied base on New Guinea's southern shore facing Australia.

The foe now has been driven back across New Guinea's mountain divide, about 70 miles from Port Moresby. Japanese installations between their north shore base, Buna, and Kokoda are being repeatedly bombed and machine-gunned from the air.

Meanwhile Allied bombers, having laid waste to Rabaul, New Britain, a Japanese base on the island front facing Australia, in two successive night assaults, scored two direct hits on a 10,000-ton Japanese seaplane tender southeast of New Britain on Sunday. The vessel when last observed was motionless and apparently severely crippled.

Twelve planes were visible on the tender's deck when the attack was delivered so it was likely that the raiders put a crimp in Japanese efforts to bolster the air support for its invasion forces in New Guinea, the Solomons or elsewhere.

New Daylight Raid Believed Under Way

LONDON—(UP)—The roar of motors of many airplanes, heard high above the clouds above the southeast coast, indicated today that Allied planes had started another major daylight attack on enemy occupied territory.

A few squadrons flew low enough to be seen, but the others, out of sight, were heard for more than an hour without cessation.

Berlin, Luxembourg and Calais, France, radio stations went suddenly off the air at 9:30 last night for a reason unknown. Berlin resumed service just before midnight.

London Paper Hails Fortresses' Feat

LONDON — (AP) — Friday's punishing raid on Lille by big American four motored bombers —Fortresses and Liberators—in which at least 105 German fighter planes were destroyed or damaged was declared by the London Daily Express today to have been "vindication" of American aircraft engineering.

The Express, whose air correspondents have been most doubtful of the ability of the United States heavy bombers to carry out day raids, said in an editorial:

"There has been some criticism of American designers who, in producing the Fortress, sacrificed bomb load for gun power and armor.

"This (Lille) triumph is vindication of their policy and an answer to their critics."

Allies Have Big Day Over Mediterranean

CAIRO —(U.P.)— American and British bombers and fighters, in one of their biggest days over the Mediterranean, blasted a convoy, damaged a schooner, and shot down 18 Axis planes yesterday with only one Allied loss.

Heavy American bombers attacked an enemy convoy south of Crete and scored two direct hits on one of two large merchant vessels and shot down three Nazi planes, United States army headquarters announced.

The RAF announced that its fighters based on Malta repulsed five attacks by enemy air fleets. The Axis sent 69 bombers and more than 150 fighters against the tiny, frequently-bombed island. They lost 15 planes—seven bombers and eight fighters.

RAF planes also left a two-masted schooner afire two miles northwest of Sidi Barrani and caused considerable damage to an east-bound motor convoy along the North African supply route.

Damage Nazi Subs In 48-Hour Fight

LONDON —(AP)— A 48-hour battle in the Atlantic in which four small Norwegian corvettes and the British destroyer Viscount seriously damaged four German submarines and perhaps others was reported today by the admiralty.

The U-boats were said to have attacked in relays of as many as seven at a time, by daylight and darkness, but they were met by depth charges and deck-gun fire and even daring charges in which the corvettes, in battle action for the first time, tried to ram them.

Dismissal of Norway's Police Chief Reported

LONDON —(AP)— The Moscow radio broadcast reports from Oslo today that Jonas Lie had been dismissed as Norwegian chief of police and that Major Vidkun Quisling had taken personal charge of the civil police.

Fresh outbreaks of sabotage in occupied Norway predicted by Norwegian circles here today as the Germans listed a state of emergency they imposed in the Trondheim area last Tuesday after executing 34 alleged saboteurs and hostages.

Far from stamping out rebellion, these circles said, the strong measures taken by the Germans probably will serve only to provoke new outbreaks.

"Undoubtedly," one source who must remain anonymous declared, "the Germans have aroused some of the Norwegians in the Trondheim area who have been passive heretofore."

Actually, it was said, the lifting of the state of emergency will mean little because of the normal restraints imposed on the Norwegian population by occupation authorities."

tice on the senate that he would champion it in the next bill.

3. Social security taxes, although the senate overrode President Roosevelt's wishes and froze the old age benefit tax at one per cent on employer and one per cent on employe for 1943, the president gave notice that he would ask for "substantial increases" after disposal of the pending bill.

4. Sales tax. Advocates of this type of levy assert it is "absolutely inevitable" in any new revenue bill because all other sources have about reached the point of diminishing returns.

Aside from the victory tax, which is a super levy imposed on top of increased normal and surtax rates for individuals, there is no difference in the other individual rates between senate and house. In individual exemptions, however, the senate voted $300 for each dependent while the house voted $400.

Main difference in the corporation rates of the two bills is that the house provides a combined normal and surtax rate of 45 per cent and the senate 40 per cent. The senate provides a 10 per cent post war credit against excess profits taxes paid which is lacking in the house bill.

The mass of differences between the two versions is in the numerous technical and administrative amendments, of which there are more than 100.

Pilot Will Fly Brazilian Rubber To Allied Ports

CARACAS, Venezuela —(INS)— Jimmy Angel, famous American pilot, credited with knowing the interior of South America better than any other explorer, will turn his talents to flying rubber from the deep reaches of the Amazon basin to Allied ports, it was learned here.

Details of Angel's work in bringing rubber out of the interior cannot be disclosed but it is known that his plane can carry ten tons of rubber to an Allied port in three hours. At present primitive Indian canoes transport a quarter of a ton the same distance in twenty days.

With Angel will be his wife, the former Marie Sanders, who is also a pilot. It was not known whether Mrs. Angel would share her husband's flying duties. She is also considered an expert jungle flyer and like her husband, knows a number of Indian dialects.

so far have failed to accomplish.

Latest official advices reveal that the enemy has been making intensive, and apparently successful, effort to land troop reinforcements on the northwestern shores of Guadalcanal. Earlier landings — on a small scale but with disturbing frequency—were made on the southern shores.

The Japanese are now risking sizeable naval forces to cover their greatly intensified landing operations. Between Oct. 5 and 8, three enemy warships thus engaged were hit by American torpedo planes and dive bombers. Those included a destroyer which was sunk, another which was damaged and a 7,100-ton Kato class cruiser, which was left burning.

Despite that resistance by American airmen—and they so far appear to be the only opposition to enemy naval forces in the Solomons—the Japanese are getting reinforcements ashore.

Although navy communiques have failed to mention it, the Japanese apparently are now using transports to convey their troops to the island. That was indicated by the navy's statement that enemy naval forces attacked by American planes were engaged in "covering" landing operations. Thus, it appears that a large scale land battle is in the making.

Enemy troops landed on the southern side of Guadalcanal will have to cross mountains, which form an irregular backbone for the island, in order to reach American positions. Some of those mountains are 8,000 feet high but there are others less than 2,000 feet. It is not unlikely that some of those forces already have made their way across and are bivouacked in the dense jungles on the south side of the mountains.

Nothing has been said here about American preparations to meet the new threat. Nevertheless, observers are confident that the Japanese are in for the toughest fight of their Pacific campaign. First, because it is of paramount importance for the marines to hold their toe-hold in the Solomons. And, the marines just don't give up.

TALKS TONIGHT

Labor Director To Address War Chest Session.

Mansfield AFL and CIO councils will meet today at 7:30 p. m. to hear Joseph H. Pataky of Columbus, regional director of the National CIO committee on American and Allied war relief, speak in the Trades Council chambers, 37½ East Third street.

Fred B. Hout, major general of the community war chest campaign, will also address the meeting and outline the program to be followed in the Mansfield and Richland county drive to open Nov. 9. Pataky will explain the national CIO program.

The meeting is open to all unionists. Unions in both councils were represented recently when the labor endorsement of "one hour's pay each month" was made in connection with the campaign.

CALLS DIET FOE OF GOOD VOICE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — (U.P.) — Hollywood dicting and its nation-wide vogue among American women, have signed the death warrant of any future great line of American operatic divas, according to Frances A. Wright, professor of music at the University of California.

"Girls today diet and don't sing," she said. "Boyish figures were not fashionable in 1914. A good voice must be supported by a good physique. Schumann-Heink in her seventies sang magnificently.

"Two factors responsible for the ruin of many young voices are the overuse of the vocal chords in full singing before the vocal apparatus is matured, and the lack of a fully developed muscular physique."

PEDESTRIAN, HIT BY AUTOMOBILE, DIES AT GALION

William D. Leonard Succumbs To Injuries Received In Highway Friday Night.

GALION—William D. Leonard, 36, died Sunday at the Galion city hospital, as a result of injuries received Friday night when he was struck by a car driven by John C. Boyd, 26, of 796 Boyd Blvd. Boyd was accompanied by his father, John S. Boyd, vice president of the Galion Iron Works and Manufacturing company, at the time of the accident.

Leonard was walking near the China Pig, east of the city limits, highway patrolmen said.

They reported that Leonard was in the middle of the road when he was struck and that Boyd failed to see him because of a heavy rain.

Highway patrolmen said Boyd was coming toward Galion and swerved to the left to avoid hitting Leonard, but that the right side of the car struck him.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Snyder funeral home by Rev. Cyril Collison, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Burial will be in LaRue cemetery.

GIRLS RETURN

Go Back To Institution After Midnight Hike to Bucyrus.

BUCYRUS—Six girls, ranging in age from nine to 16, were back in the County Children's home at Galion today, patching up the childish grievances which prompted them to slip away from the home shortly before midnight Friday and hike 11 miles to Bucyrus.

The girls were apprehended by Bucyrus police who became suspicious of the girls appearance on downtown streets at 3 o'clock Saturday morning.

When questioned they told officers that they came to Bucyrus to see Judge Constance R. Keller.

Judge Keller was called to police headquarters and after talking to the girls they were returned to the home.

★ It takes about 2,500 tons of steel scrap to replace a Liberty ship!

Here's How YOU Can Get In The SCRAP

IF YOU LIVE IN MANSFIELD—

1. Search attic, basement and yard. Collect the scrap and go into action. You can—
2. Call a local junk dealer. Their names are in the phone directory. They will send a collector and pay you current prices for the scrap. Or you can—
3. Donate the scrap to your favorite charity. Nearly all of the established charity services maintain scrap collection services. They call for the scrap and then receive the money from the sale of it. Or you can—
4. Donate your scrap to the Richland Victory Civic Committee and the money will be used for going-away parties for the service men and for remembrances for them. Just phone 2763-6 (the Civilian Defense number) and a scrap collector will call for your collection. Or you can—
5. Deliver your scrap yourself to any filling station or sell it to any junk yard.

IF YOU LIVE IN THE COUNTRY—

1. A farm-to-farm canvass of Richland County is being made for scrap. Either you have been or will be visited. You can—
2. Turn in your scrap to the truck that will call at your farm. Or you can—
3. Call a junk dealer in Mansfield, Shelby or other towns in the county. Their general policy is to go out in the country for loads of two tons or more. Or you can—
4. Load up your scrap and deliver it to any junk yard, your favorite charity or the Richland Victory Civic Committee, phone 3763-6.

IF YOU LIVE IN SHELBY, PLYMOUTH, SHILOH, BELLVILLE, LEXINGTON, LUCAS, Etc.—

CEREMONY UNITES COUPLE AT TEMPLE

Mansfield Girl and Columbus Boy Married Sunday In Lovely Ceremony At B'Nai Jacob Temple; Will Live In Columbus.

WHEN she was united in marriage to Maurice Joseph Rokeach, Miss Esther Booksbaum made a lovely picture in her gown of white satin. It was fashioned with a high neckline inset with lace, and a tight bodice onto which was gathered a full skirt extending into a long train. Tiny buttons trimmed the back, and the long sleeves ended in points over the wrists. Her fingertip veil was held in place with an arrangement of orange blossoms. She carried a front style bouquet of white roses, pompons and stephanotis, tied with white satin ribbons.

The ceremony took place at the B'Nai Jacob Temple at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Miss Booksbaum was given in marriage by her father before an altar decorated with palms, ferns and candles. An arch of white pompons marked the entrance to the altar. White satin ribbons were used at the pew of relatives.

Miss Gertrude Booksbaum was her sister's maid of honor. She was attired in an ashes of roses, floor-length model with a full chiffon skirt gathered onto a bodice of satin. Her colonial bouquet was of pink roses, yellow, white and lavender pompons with a shower of narrow ribbons matching the flowers. Herbert Cohen of Baltimore, Md., brother-in-law of Mr. Rokeach, served as best man.

The bride's mother wore an aqua gown with a jacket of a darker shade trimmed with bead embroidery at the neck and pockets. Mrs. Rokeach, mother of the bridegrom, was attired in a floor length dress of dubonnet crepe fashioned with sequins down the front.

A reception was held for 200 guests at the temple. The long table held a lovely centerpiece of white pompons with white candles placed at intervals the length of the table. From this, supper was served buffet style.

Preceding and during the service Prof. E. T. S Cliffe was at the piano and Miss Carol Anne Spencer sang two selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Booksbaum, 585 South Diamond street and has been employed as a stenographer at Lockbourne Army Air base, Columbus. She is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, and Dyke Business school in Cleveland.

Mr. Rokeach was graduated from South high school in Columbus, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Rokeach, 811 Wager street, Columbus. He is a machinist at the Latimer-Stevens company and with his bride will reside at the Wager street address.

For her going away costume Mrs. Rokeach chose a brown suit with matching accessories, and wore a corsage of white roses, stephanotis and pompons.

Chautauqua Circle Elects Officers At Lomax Home

Mrs. Marie Lomax was elected president of the Chautauqua circle at a meeting held recently at her home, 139 Reba avenue. Others who were chosen to serve during the coming year are Mrs Treva Campbell, vice president; Mrs. Ella McHugh, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell, press correspondent.

A covered-dish dinner was enjoyed at a long table centered with fall flowers and attractive appointments. The business session was conducted by Mrs. Lomax. Prizes in hearts were won by Mrs Lydia Bookwalter and Mrs. Lydia Biddle. Mrs. Mae Brubaker received the guest award.

On Nov. 12 the circle will meet with Mrs. Georgia Harts, 144 Arthur avenue. Members are requested to bring quilt blocks with them.

Velvet Frocks Rank High In Style

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

VELVET is a high-ranking fashion favorite this season in the new noon to midnight styles. Because of limitations on yardage, formal models favor fabrics which have inherent luxuriousness, and all-American velvets are filling this need for rich materials beautifully.

In both long and short styles for gala wear, the charm of them exquisite texture and colors is enhanced by their lovely draping qualities. As an additional blessing, the miraculous crush resistance which has made regal dull-textured rayon velvets such a joy has been extended this year to the new transparent velvets, adding practicality to luxury in this supple material.

Whatever your dress-up requirements are, you'll find enchanting velvet styles to glorify your social moments. Lovely dress-weight constructions in flattering jewel-tones and smart black make slim daytime and afternoon frocks as well as glamorous dinner and evening dresses and formal dinner suits. Sheer transparent rayon velvets impart their lovely sheen and soft feeling to moulded styles for both afternoon and evening, and heavier Lyons-type rayon velvet lends its formality to tailored evening suits and picturesque full-skirted evening frocks.

Bridesmaid's Frocks Effective

Priorities - free bridesmaid's frocks are unusually effective in both sheer and heavier weights. One model shown in a recent fashion show was made of regal crush resistant rayon velvet in a glowing ruby red Below a brief puffed-sleeved bodice the full skirt flared widely over a contrast flounce of luxurious rayon faille.

Ideal for furlough dates are the softly styled street-length frocks in sooty black or gay autumn shades. Two particularly becoming models are shown in the above photographs.

The bolero dress (left) is made of jet black crush-resistant rayon velvet. The bodice, which emphasizes the long torso lines, is of colorful rayon and metal lame. The skirt is short but gracefully full

The other dress is made of transparent rayon velvet with short sleeves and a slim long torsoed bodice which is accented with gleaming gilt embroidery.

All-Day Meeting Held At Pavilion By Home Circle

When 52 members of the Mothers' Home circle met at North Lake park pavilion on Friday, the dinner table was attractively decorated with fall flowers that later were given to persons who are ill. The day was spent quilting, cutting and piecing comfort tops, and making comforts for layettes.

The meeting was opened with the salute to the flag and singing of "America." Mrs. George Hoover led devotions. Reports were given on welfare work of the past month. The roll was partially revised.

For the Nov. 13 meeting, which also will be held at the pavilion, the hostesses will be Mrs. Mary Woolard, Mrs Lucille Bamberger, Mrs. Ray Brinley, Mrs. Earl Mann, Mrs Charles Barr, and Mrs. F. B. Poling.

Surprise Couple With Dinner

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I saw a shiver run over Carolyn as Dicky ushered her, with Miss Whitlock and myself, into one of the small "dungeons" opening off the central room of my father's basement hideaway, and locked the door on us as my father had ordered.

To me there is always something eerie at being locked into a room, even though not being deprived of my liberty, and I knew Carolyn was sharing my feeling. Only Miss Whitlock appeared totally unperturbed, but listened as keenly as Carolyn and I for any disturbing noises outside.

But those "sound proof" dungeons are not misnamed. No sound came to our ears, but I guessed the guards were having trouble, because it was almost a quarter of an hour before Dicky released us

Tied in Her Chair.

"You will please go over now to that chair, Carolyn," my father said calmly, "and Miss Whitlock will tie you to it, as I said before The ropes are ready."

There was a raucous shout from the other end of the room

"What the devil is this? What mumbo jumbo are you pulling off?"

Carolyn's terrified eyes turned toward the man, who had larded his words with imprecations, and gave a moan of horror. I was not surprised, for the "collegiate gangster" was a terrifying sight. He was unshaven and unshorn: had blood on his face and hands.

"I wouldn't look at him, Carolyn," Dicky said with surprising gentleness. "He isn't a pretty sight. You see, he decided he'd fight four guards at once."

Safely Out of Reach.

As another burst of imprecations came from the gangster's bruised lips, Carolyn shuddered and shrank back. I knew she was grateful to my father for the command he had given to tie her up so securely that, no matter what the man might say, she could not go within reach of him

"You don't need to go on with this, Carolyn," Dicky said calmly. "It isn't going to be a pleasant experience, I am afraid."

The girl's eyes mirrored stark tragedy, but she did not falter in her reply.

"But I've got to go through with it," she said

"Very well," my father said with decision "When you are ready for us, just rap three times on that post beside you."

He turned and led us all out into a room like the one we had just left, but which had fairly comfortable chairs My father seated us, then indicated a contrivance of tubes and cords on the wall, and put his finger to his lips as Carolyn's frightened voice came to our ears.

"Oh, Rico!" she wailed, "please tell me what has happened to Marion I've tried so hard to get out to find you, but they watch me—"

"Will you shut your trap?" the gangster snarled in almost a whisper, yet we could hear every word.

"You damned little fool," the snarling whisper went on, "don't you know why they left us alone here? They've fixed it so they can hear every word either of us says.

"Now I don't want a word out of you," he said in a still fainter whisper, "but I'm going to tell you one or two things in a low whisper. Nod your head if you can hear me"

Carolyn must have nodded.

"If you don't want to have things spilled to your school and your folks you get in touch with the one I told you to before—you know. You'd better! I've told him everything, and he'll do just what I would do if I could get out of here."

Carolyn's voice rose to a shriek

"You — unspeakable — thing! You told, after you had promised."

HOROSCOPE

FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 13

The planetary configurations ruling this day are conflicting. While there are some adverse aspects to be reckoned on yet there are definite promises of making progress, especially with the public, the community or those in influential positions There may be danger from sudden and unconsidered change or hasty and rash speech or writings.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year calling for more than usual discretion and well-considered plans, should they desire to achieve progress of a surprising and lucrative nature This however might bring defeat and disappointment if there are erratic, reckless or impulsive acts, in writings or speech Deal tactfully with those in power and authority

A child born on this day should have an alert and progressive mind, but at times it may be carried away by excitement and emotional mistakes.

Champion Joe Lewis Announces Retirement From Ring

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Something of a long distance traveling record for purposes of a friendly visit has been set by those neighborly brothers, Fritz and Nick Weber of Mansfield and Uncle Sam's army and Texas.

Fritz is stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, Nick at Camp Hood, Temple, Texas, and they may be a long way apart at that, since Texas takes up a large share of the map, but they might have visited back and forth down there deep in the heart of, without traversing the mileage which brought them both back to Mansfield at one and the same time.

Seems that Fritz, who has been in the army 18 months with nary a furlough to his name, heard that brother Nick, the old Mansfield high and Tennessee quarterback star, would be in Mansfield, en route from the eastern army all star football games back to his camp, and yearned to see brother Nick here in the home surroundings.

So Fritz puts in for his furlough and gets it, and lands in Mansfield a week ago yesterday in time for a four-day visit with Nick, who went back to Camp Hood last Thursday. Fritz returns to Fort Sam Houston Wednesday.

And a very good time was had by all at the Weber household. And Duke, and Mrs. Duke and young Duke, who made all-Ohio football guard with the Tygers last fall, were all very pleased with the quirk of circumstance which reunited the family for a few short days.

I hear ex-Tyger Gridder, Cager Kenney Krupp is due for "shore leave" from Great Lakes Naval Training station soon.

And also that Ken, who turned down an early chance to try out for the Great Lakes football team, has changed his mind and will don grid togs again this fall.

Seems he was given his choice of football or boxing as a "toughening" sport.

Yesterday's suggestion that Mansfield and Madison high schools meet in a post season football game for the benefit of the War Chest, has drawn quick reaction from grid fans.

One writes in today to urge that such a game be played on a Sunday to draw a real crowd. But I doubt if the two schools would go for that, even for such a worthy cause.

Another fan would like to see Mansfield and Ashland tangle. Pointing out that Ashland has a big team one of the best in its history.

Fan reaction is a good thing, but it will probably take definite steps by the War Chest committee to produce a post-season game.

Counterfeiters of Grid Ducats Held

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Columbus police today held 12 men whom they accused of counterfeiting tickets to Ohio State's football games.

Detectives arrested 10 men after the Southern California game and two others Sunday. The latter were the printer of the tickets and the man who conceived the idea.

The counterfeiters made 250 tickets for the Indiana game and 600 for the Southern California game. They were sold near the stadium for $1.10 apiece. The regular general admission price is $1.50.

* * *

Federal agents may take the counterfeiters into custody because there is a federal tax on the tickets.

Toss Form Books Out Window

Big Ten Race Springs Bunch of Early Upsets.

COLUMBUS—(INS)— Pitch those form books out the window, brother, and brace yourself for a season of upsets greater than the one in which the United States kicked the dope bucket and won independence from Great Britain many moons ago.

The Western Conference grid scramble today took on the peculiar form of having Minnesota and Northwestern at the bottom of the heap and Illinois and Purdue at the top along with Ohio State.

Purdue, next foe for Paul Brown's Buckeyes, edged Northwestern 7-6 at Evanston to start the upset ball well on its way but Illinois chugged along, and with the help of two touchdowns by Guard Alex Agase, brought to an abrupt ending the Minnesota dynasty of Big Nine football with a 20-13 conquest of the mighty Gophers in one of the greatest upsets of recent pigskin history.

The Fightin' Illini, by playing the role of David in whittling the Goliath Gophers down to the rest of the league's size, thus protected an undefeated record that includes the greatest point total of an Indian team in Memorial stadium history in Butler's 67-0 subjugation.

Whether the victory definitely established Illinois as a power in the midwest will have to be seen as the season progresses, but if they lose all the rest of their games—the campaign is already a success.

Meanwhile Columbus reasserted its claim to "football capital of the nation" fame by adding Southern California to its growing list of victims, 28-12. The Ohio State eleven is now undefeated in three outings and from the results of Saturday's games, the toughest part of the schedule is ahead.

Two great passes—among the ranking plays of recent stadium history—spelled defeat for the Trojans as early as the first period when Paul Sarringhaus rifled a 15 yard heave to Bob Shaw who jaunted 48 yards for the first Buckeye score and a 35-yard heave a few minutes later by Tommy James to the Fremont flanker accounted for the second.

A great puzzle to the assembled gallery of 56,346, biggest grid crowd in the nation this season to date, was the apparent inability of Gene Fekete, brilliant sophomore fullback, to "get going." It might be said of Fekete that he played one of the outstanding games despite the fact that he didn't add to his touchdown total.

The Trojan defense was so bent on stopping "Big Bertha" that they played what, in reality, was an eight-yard off tackle sneak by the medium of this ultra-concentration on halting Fekete and the shorter gains that made it such a simple matter to toss the two aerials over the Southern Cal secondary which provided the victory.

Other Ohio touchdowns came on a 33-yard sprint by Bob Frye and an eight-yard off-tackle sneak by Capt. George Lynn.

Both Southern California scores came on passes, the last of which was scored in the waning minutes of play with Buckeye substitutes on the field.

Ohio State meets Purdue this week in one of the headliners of the schedule, rivaling the Michigan-Northwestern clash for top billing. Other Western Conference games find Illinois at Iowa, Indiana going against Pittsburgh, Nebraska playing host to Minnesota and Great Lakes traveling to Wisconsin.

Other conference results Saturday found the undefeated Iowa Seahawks scoring 13 points in the final period to crush hitherto unbeaten Michigan, 26-14 at Ann Arbor, Wisconsin upsetting a highly-regarded Missouri eleven, 17-9, and Iowa outlasted Camp Grant 33-16.

Guards Win Games With Touchdowns

CHICAGO — (AP) — Some queer things are going on in the Western conference. Guards—the players whose names you don't know—are winning ball games.

A couple of them you'll remember though. Take Alex Agase, Illinois' aggressive Assyrian. He was the bottom man in an end zone dogpile, coming up with the ball from a mad scramble for a touchdown. He was the man who later grabbed the ball from William Daley and lumbered 35 yards for another touchdown.

Alexander truly was the hero when Minnesota crumbled into a 20 to 13 defeat, its first in 13 conference games.

A week ago, you'll remember, another guard, benchwarmer Allan Pick, kicked a field goal to give Northwestern a 3-0 verdict over Texas. Pick's kick against Purdue last week didn't have much of a chance, for Barry French a tackle, slapped the ball aside thus saving a 7 to 6 victory for the Boilermakers.

French will be remembered for a long time.

Treat Yourself to Day at the Races

Annie Alone (top photo) runs true to her name as she romps home ahead of the field minus her jockey whom she unseated at the starting gate at Hawthorne Park near Chicago. Below, Rider E. Roundtree is seriously injured as his mount, Daneskie, spills on a tough hurdle at Belmont Park, New York.

Undefeated Teams Cut

Cincinnati, Otterbein Rule Roost in Ohio.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The select list of Ohio's unbeaten colleges today stood at seven after a disastrous week-end campaign which found five of the state's leaders being toppled from the unblemished ranks.

Cincinnati and Otterbein ruled the Buckeye realm, along with Ohio State, with three conquests in as many starts, the Queen City eleven having chalked up a seasonal point total of 90 to the opponents' seven while Otterbein has tallied 30 markers to a single touchdown for the opposition in its three games.

Harry Baujan's Dayton Flyers, leaders of the Ohio list a week ago, hit the skids according to schedule dropping a 31-6 decision to Tennessee. The defeat was not humiliating in the least as the Vols had disposed of mighty Fordham 40-14, a week previous.

Other teams to be toppled from the undefeated class included Toledo, Ohio Wesleyan, Kenyon and John Carroll.

Toledo dropped a 13-0 tilt to Western Michigan, Ohio Wesleyan was surprised by Baldwin-Wallace, 19-7. Kenyon went down at the hands of Otterbein, Ohio conference leader, 22-0, and John Carroll was crushed by Xavier, 26-7.

Four other teams are undefeated in Ohio conference competition to remain in a virtual tie with the Cardinals, winners of three in a row. Denison and John Carroll have each won two loop tilts without defeat. Toledo won its only conference start and Ohio Northern has one victory but a tie to mar its slate.

Cincinnati protected its unsullied record with a 21-0 victory over Centre's Prayin' Colonels and Ohio State's victory over Southern California hiked their offensive mark to 119 points in three games to 26 for the foe.

Findlay snapped out of a victoryless streak with a 19-9 win over Muskingum and thus pulled out of the Ohio conference cellar, now shared by Muskingum and Heidelberg with two reversals.

Three Tied for Scoring Honors

NEW YORK—(AP)— Three players, including all-America Frankie Sinkwich of Georgia, share the lead among the nation's football scorers as the season nears its halfway point.

Others of the top-ranking trio are Lee Tevis of Washington university at St. Louis and Ralph La Pointe of Vermont. Each has scored 42 points.

WALKER BOOKED

COLUMBUS (AP) Buddy Walker, local heavyweight, and Johnny Flynn of New York City will meet here Oct. 19.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—Wide World—You probably can get a fresh idea on baseball's feature from every guy in the business, but here's one angle that's brand new to us—relayed from a minor league club owner by Lawrence Skiddy of the Syracuse Herald-Journal . . . The owner figures that any effort to shorten the season would wreck the minors . . . Double A players, he points out, get an average of about $2,000 for a 20 week season or $100 a week . . . Cut three weeks off that and they'd get only $1,700 — because without those Sunday doubleheaders the owners couldn't afford to pay as much as they would for a full season . . . The result would be that most players would be sticking to their factory jobs, which pay almost that much the year around.

SCRAP COLLECTION

The Southern Conference again has turned down the proposal that freshmen be allowed to play varsity football, but we'll bet it wasn't the coaches who did it . . . The National Hockey league is taking plenty of chances on transportation troubles with its new schedule, calling for frequent appearances of teams in Montreal and Toronto Saturday nights and in Boston, New York or Detroit on Sunday . . . Bill Keefe of the New Orleans Times Picayune points out that the big problems in football from now on will be training and coaches — railroad training and day coaches.

POSTPONED PAYOFF

When Chief Bender, the old Athletics' pitcher, made his pro baseball debut in Dillsworth, Pa., 41 years ago he was promised $5 for a day's work . . . The locals passed the hat and dumped the coins in Bander's hands, and then he counted the pennies and nickels the sum was $1.80 short . . . That's the way it stood until a couple of weeks ago . . . Then William Sheffer read about the occasion in a Philadelphia paper, and to clear his home town's reputation he took up another collection to pay off the chief.

SERVICE DEPT.

Soldiers who are traveling with the Army Air Show have organized a football team to fill their spare time (if any) and would like to scrimmage Bernie Bierman's Navy Cadets when they're in that vicinity . . . Pvt. Bill Scanlan, sports columnist of the Fort Sheridan, Ill., Tower, figures that the cancellation of the Louis-Conn fight was all for the best . . . "It would have been too confusing trying to mix fighting with the World Series," he writes. "And both of them got promotions in rank and neither one got hurt."

Bears Roll on To Pro Crown

Green Bay Packers Preparing Threat.

(By United Press)

The mighty Chicago Bears straddled the National Football league like some tremendous Goliath today and unless the Green Bay Packers or New York Giants come through with a surprise victory, George Halas' rock-ribbed juggernaut will spread-eagle the field for its third consecutive professional championship.

* * *

The Giants, winners of two out of three games, play the Bears at Chicago next Sunday while the Packers, who finished last season in a tie with the current champions for western division honors, play the Halas hot-shots on Nov. 15. In last season's playoff, the Bears routed the Packers and went on to annihilate the Giants for the title.

* * *

Yet the Packers who won the league crown in 1929, '30, '31, seem to be gathering momentum for their clash with the Bears and are still within sight of the pace-setters, having lost only one game in three starts.

Green Bay handed the Lions their fourth straight defeat, 38-7, before 19,500 at Milwaukee, Wis., yesterday, scoring five touchdowns and a field goal while holding Detroit to a single score.

The Bears rolled up the second highest score of the season and remained undefeated in three starts by trampling the Cardinals, 41-14, before 38,500 fans at Chicago.

Credit for the upset of the day went to the Pittsburgh Steelers who threw up an almost perfect defense to blank the Dodgers before 17,489 at Brooklyn. Bill Dudley scored the only touchdown in the second period on an off-tackle smash from the eight after inaugurating the drive from Pittsburgh's 38 with a 20-yard break through center.

* * *

The Redskins took over the eastern division lead by trouncing the Cleveland Rams, 33-14, at Washington before 33,250 fans.

The Giants swamped the Philadelphia Eagles, 35-17, before 28,264 at New York.

DEFEND TITLE

TROY—(AP)—The world championship horse pulling team of Dick and Tom, owned by Ulva Michael of Montpelier, Ind., successfully defended its title here yesterday, pulling 6,500 pounds 29 feet 11 inches. A team entered by Vincent brothers of South Charleston, O., captured the title in the light division.

WIN ROOK TITLE

MIDDLETOWN — (AP) — The Armco Steelmakers won the Indiana-Ohio baseball league championship with a 9-2 defeat over Lafayette Ind. to capture the series three games to two.

HOCKEY LEAGUE OPENS WITH ONLY SIX TEAMS

NEW YORK —(INS)— The National Hockey league, once a 10-group circuit, with double representation in two cities, but now reduced to six clubs, inaugurates its season Oct. 31, it was revealed today.

Two games listed for the opening night will bring together the Boston Bruins against the Canadiens at Montreal, while the world-champion Toronto Maple Leafs will clash with the New York Rangers in Madison Square Garden.

Frosh Gridders Scramble Dope

Form Players Handed Headaches This Year.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK—(AP)—With freshmen holding first team berths and strangers holding coaching jobs, it's little wonder that the unprecedented wartime football season, rapidly approaching the halfway mark, has the fans holding their heads.

Those who appreciate action in carload lots will have to wait no longer than the coming week-end for more of the same.

If the season has proved nothing else, it has shown that the navy can produce teams from among its pre-flight trainees that are better than the best collegiate squads, but even this convincing demonstration may strike a snag before another week.

* * *

Lieut. Col. Bernie Bierman's Iowa Seahawks, whose 26-14 victory over Michigan last week added the Wolverines to a list of victims that already included Northwestern and Minnesota, are due for another stern test Saturday against a Notre Dame team that finally has found itself.

With accurate Angelo Bertelli passing to all four touchdowns, the Irish whipped Stanford last Saturday, 27-0.

Illinois, fresh from its surprising 20-13 triumph over Minnesota, stakes its clean record against Iowa in another midwestern headliner and Wisconsin, 17-9 conqueror of Missouri, meets Great Lakes Naval. Michigan and Northwestern collide in another Big Ten game.

One of the east's principal attractions will find Pennsylvania, which walloped Yale, 35-6, bumping into Princeton, the team that surprised Navy, 10-0.

Jim Crowley's North Carolina Pre-Flighters travel to Boston college; Colgate, conqueror of Dartmouth Saturday, has an intersectional date with Duke, and Pitt entertains an Indiana team that shut out Nebraska, 12-0.

* * *

Georgia and Frank Sinkwich, fresh from a 48-13 win over Mississippi for the fourth in a row stake an unblemished record against Tulane, which again is winning on alternate Saturdays and stopped Rice, 18-7, on its last outing.

Another southern thriller might be the tussle between Alabama and Tennessee.

In the southwest, Texas will be opening its bid for conference honors against Adkansas.

U. C. L. A., which upset Oregon State's defending champions on the Pacific coast, 30-7, bumps into California, which has lost two close ones, the last, 7-6, to Santa Clara.

Orange Street Wins Shutout

Carl Phillipon Leads Scorers in A-League.

Orange Street Cafe scored the only shutout victory in the City "A" bowling league at Colony alleys last evening, blanking the Eagles.

Carl Phillipon took individual honors with a 643 total, and tied with Skeet Wolfe for high game with 234.

* * *

E. Burger rolled 609, Brig Young 607, and J. Hanrahan 604, including a 225 game. Young and Burger each had a 224 game.

Says He'll Do Rest of His Fighting for Army

Brown Bomber Believes He'll Be Too Old For Boxing After War

OMAHA, Neb.—(INS)—The ring career of Joe Louis, regarded by many as the greatest fighter of all time, was at an end today, according to his own definite statement.

The great heavyweight champion announced his retirement in Omaha where, as Sgt. Joseph Louis Barrow, he came with a crack drill platoon of Negro cavalrymen from Fort Riley, Kas., to stage intricate maneuvers between halves of the Creighton-Fort Riley football game yesterday.

"I'm in the army now," he said. "Any fighting I do will be as a soldier.

"By the time the war is over I'll be in my thirties, and that's too old for fighting. I'm too old now."

He took in good part the recent cancellation of his scheduled bout with Billy Conn when Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson learned that receipts of the bout, instead of going entirely for army relief, were to be used in part to pay debts Louis and Conn owed to Promoter Mike Jacobs.

He previously had fought two bouts in which he waived his entire purse for the Army and Navy Relief funds.

Joe Louis' only defeat in 57 fights after he graduated from the Golden Gloves amateur championship into professional ranks was at the hands of Max Schmeling by a knockout. But in a later meeting with Max he reversed that result decisively, not only knocking out the German but putting him in the hospital.

He started his professional career in 1934 and won the heavyweight championship June 22, 1937, from James J. Braddock at Comiskey park in Chicago by a knockout.

From then until he enlisted as a private in the army last January, he met any contender that the promoters could dig up for him until he practically had exhausted the list of opponents that were regarded as having even a slight chance against him.

He was admired not only as a great fighter but for his exemplary conduct in private life. This conduct he took with him into the army where he soon was promoted to a corporal and recently to sergeant.

Buckeyes Meet Boilermakers

Battle For Leadership Of Western Conference.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Purdue's battling Boilermakers, 7-6 upset winners over Northwestern, meet Ohio State's thrice-victorious Bucks Saturday in the headline attraction of a 21-game program involving college squads.

While the two powerhouse elevens are battling for the Western conference leadership, four members of the old Buckeye circuit are due to put on quite a show of their own.

Those scraps send unbeaten-untied and unscored-on Ohio university to the Queen City for a tilt with Cincinnati's Bearcats, who have allowed only one enemy touchdown while downing three opponents; and Dayton's high fliers to Oxford for a contest with Miami's Redskins.

* * *

Dayton has bowed only to tough Tennessee in four starts this season, while Miami has dropped one to Dartmouth in three games.

The unbeaten-untied class dwindled to seven last week-end.

Here's the week's lineup.

Wednesday night: Wright-Patterson Field at Findlay.

Friday night: Toledo at John Carroll, Denison at Muskingum (Ohio conference games) and Bluffton at Findlay.

Saturday afternoon: Purdue at Ohio State (Western conference); Capital at Ohio Northern, Wittenberg at Mount Union and Wooster at Case (Ohio conference); Wright-Patterson Field at Kent State, Akron at Ohio Wesleyan, Allegheny at Kenyon, Hamilton at Oberlin, Hiram at Heidelberg, Bowling Green at Wayne, Dayton at Miami, Defiance at Earlham, and Wilberforce vs. Philander Smith at Little Rock, Ark.

Saturday night: Western Reserve at Baldwin-Wallace, Ohio U. at Cincinnati, and Otterbein vs. Miami Naval Unit at Hamilton.

Hassinger Leads Muzzle Loaders

Cy Hassinger led the Mansfield Muzzle Loader rifle club in its Saturday shoot with a percentage of 77.7, with A. Wagner second at 52.3, and E. Adams third with 46.6.

* * *

J. Adams took the 30-yard string measure match with a string of 2.30 for three shots. A. Wagner was second with 2.87 and P. Hauserman third with 3.81.

In 50-yard rest shooting J. Baldinger had a group of .84 inches. T. Nelson was second with 1.03, and J. Adams third with 1.87.

In string measure matches, with four matches of three shots each, D. Utz was first with 2.34, A. Owen second with 2.63, and Hassinger third with 2.67.

Minor Leaguers Cancel Meeting

NEW YORK —(INS)— Cancellation of the minor league convention at Minneapolis and substitution of a one-day meeting at Chicago, Dec. 4, means the end of these sessions for the duration, and thus the end of the greatest gathering of baseball talent known to those portions of the globe populated by glove and bat-bearing animals.

The demise of the three-day meetings means that there can be none of those backstairs trading sessions always so vital a part of these get-togethers and that whatever big trades are to be made between now and next season will be strictly by mail order, hit-and-miss, throughout the winter.

Now Brown Fears Purdue

Also Every Other Team Left on Buck Schedule.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Coach Paul E. Brown of Ohio State's Battling Bucks took a look today at Saturday's football scores amassed by his future foes and then declared:

"It looks like we won't have time to catch our breath the rest of the way."

Here are the scores which worried him:

Purdue 7, Northwestern 6.
Wisconsin 17, Missouri 9.
Great Lakes 7, Pittsburgh 6.
Illinois 20, Minnesota 13.
Iowa Naval Cadets 26, Michigan 14.

During the next seven weekends, Ohio State takes 'em in this order — Purdue, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Pittsburgh, Illinois, Michigan and Iowa Naval Cadets.

"Just try to find a breather anywhere in that list," Brown moaned. "Any of 'em is liable to knock us over, and the chances are a few of them will."

The Buckeye tutor admitted his boys "looked pretty good" in defeating Southern California 28 to 12 Saturday, running their three-victory scoring total to 119 against 33 for the foe. He declared, however, that the loss of sophomore end Dante Lavelli, who suffered a wrenched knee, would be felt in future contests.

"We had a hunch Purdue would not be too tough, after losing its first games," Brown said, "but that win over Northwestern makes it a lot different.

"I doubt if I get a good night's sleep from now until the season is over."

CHAPTER XVIII

"No, it isn't. You haven't red hair, baby, and your beginning was different. Mine was . . . but let's not go into that. I don't want to ruin your dinner. Have you noticed how much I'm eating? Women grow lazy and fat when their minds are useless. But tell me about you and Jud. Haven't you met anyone else who attracted you? Yes, I know. You've had a few fears that Jud would meet another girl, but you haven't had any for yourself and another boy?"

Temple smiled. "I haven't had the slightest murmur of an attraction."

"You're young and alive and lovely - looking. You're married and you've lived with a man. That makes you, whether you realize it or not, more vulnerable. It also makes you more attractive even though the others don't know you are married. I'm sorry, darling. I shouldn't think aloud."

"You've heard me speak of Abby Booth. Abby said that it was easier to send away a sweetheart than a husband. I didn't want the easiest thing. I have lived with Jud and it was good. It showed us how we would live together when the war is over."

"You're sure we'll win?"

"I don't think we will win. I think we must win!"

"Go on. What else do you think, Temple?"

"Abby and Miles could end everything between them with a couple of letters. Jud and I would have to go through a divorce. But I still think that it was worth it. I'm glad I belonged to him first. He is my first love. I am not his first, but that doesn't matter. He didn't choose me as much as I chose him. I have to believe in Jud and my marriage just as he has to believe in the cause he'll probably have to fight for. He would never talk about the service and the war. I think he felt too deeply to talk about it . . . Isn't it strange that the things you fasten to your heart, the things you live by and for, are intangible like love and faith and loyalty? I've never been demonstrative. I couldn't be. But with him I was. I lost myself in loving him. That was almost the most wonderful part of it—forgetting myself for someone else."

Paula said, "Maybe I won't move and maybe these crazy pictures aren't making faces at me. Maybe I'll go out and get a new beau or maybe I'll just have you to dinner more often. No, darling, I'm not making fun of you. You're like escapist fiction . . . to sit here and look at you and listen. Why do I always talk so much? I should listen more. With you I'm always turning back the clock and you are living for calendar dates that haven't been printed yet."

As she looked out the window at the swiftly passing small South Carolina towns, Temple thought that in only a few hours the long episode of Jud, sharply broken in May, would begin again.

She had been able to travel first-class mainly because she had had a birthday in September and had asked her family to make their gifts in money and because Ron, with his newly acquired conscience, had sent her a check for a hundred dollars. She had almost wept with joy over it, knowing that Jud would not have to see her step from a crowded coach dishevelled and sleepy.

She had written him that she would need no money from him and he had written that he would pay her expenses while she was with him. Spending carefully, she had been able to manage a few new clothes, light, bright, soft things.

Her immediate superior at the office, a brisk young woman, had granted her request for a week's holiday after Temple, standing beside the paper-littered desk, had explained that it was a young man in the service who had no hope of getting leave soon whom she wished to visit. She had dreaded the interview, fearful that the request would not be granted, wondering whether she would have the audacity to quit her job if her request were refused. But no doubt the young woman had considered how unimportant Temple's job was, the power of the senator who had recommended her and the importance of the morale of her subordinates.

Abby and Merritt had come to the station to see Temple off. Paula had sent her an expensive corsage. As the train pulled out of the station in Washington and Abby and Merritt waved good-bye she was not unmindful of the fact she was putting more miles between herself and her family without their knowledge and that Ron probably would be outraged to know that she was spending his birthday present to take her to a secret, soldier husband.

But regrets soon passed. She was on her way at last. The hot summer nights and the going without adequate food were almost forgotten. She was on her way though she knew not and cared not where she was going after she arrived. That she would see a state she had always wanted to see was of small importance. She was going to see Jud. . . . She was going to live and feel again for a little while until once more a moving train broke the episode.

Would he be in uniform when he met her? He would look splendid in uniform . . . He would have a great deal to tell her, of course . . . But she would not tell him of the heat and the hunger that had begun to bother her about three in the afternoon . . . How many afternoons she had felt light-headed in order to save only a fraction of the amount Ron had sent her.

And the brave plan of her life two years ago which did not include love for a long time and most certainly did not include hunger! She thought, "If I learn as much in the next few years as I have learned the last nine months, then I shall know too much when I am 30 . . . . You have an experience and think of it and that is wisdom. And all of a girl's wisdom that is important to her comes from men. But men have other fields to draw from. War brings men close to other men in a way that girls are never close to other girls. Mother wrote last that there were fewer students at the university this year. They're enlisting. The war seems to be creeping upon us like a snake . . . Planes have an ominous sound they never had before . . . I can't fasten my thoughts on any one thing. They seem to shoot out from a central point and the central point is — Jud. All my feelings are those of a wife, not a sweetheart. When I see him, I'll probably be only his sweetheart, not his wife . . . I don't see how we can live with each other in Florida."

Temple took a long time at luncheon, wondering whether her fellow - passengers noticed how impatiently and how often she looked at her watch. Several men in uniform were on the train.

At 4 o'clock she would be there!

At 3 she went to the dressing room and saw in the full-length mirror the girl Jud was going to meet . . . a tall, slim girl in a sheer navy frock and a small, navy turban. Jud's wife—not the boss' daughter, but the girl he chose . . . She looked more poised than she felt . . . Inside she felt as though she were breaking into little pieces. Happiness like grief is sometimes too much . . . The two are closely akin because there is fear in both.

In half an hour now . . .

Her thoughts went around in circles.

* * *

Temple saw Jud the moment she stepped from the train. He was not in uniform. He was wearing light trousers and a brown sport coat and a sport shirt open at the neck and brown and white sport shoes. He was thinner but very sunburned. He looked lean and fit and well, so extraordinarily and frighteningly strange that she wondered for an incredible second whether any of the things that had happened to them and between them had actually happened. The earth seemed to give away beneath her.

"Jud!" It was a cry, an urgent cry for him to make it real again.

"Temple, darling," he said calmly, smiling.

It WAS real again. It was all right now. The sound of his voice, his arms around her, his kiss—too much a railroad station sort of kiss, but his.

He was smiling at her happily, "Hi!" he said gaily. "Didn't I tell you once I'd take you into strange places? There's nothing particularly strange about palm trees and oranges growing in your back yard, but they do thrill you the first time you see them." His next look was warm and, in time, the look she knew so well. "You're still the same, aren't you, Temple?"

"Don't you want me to be? It hasn't been that long for me to be different."

He shook his head, his eyes narrowing. "You'll never be different. But — hey! — this is no place to talk! These your bags? You're traveling lightly! I borrowed a station wagon."

She wanted to tell him but did not that the brightness and purity of the day reminded her of the day when they had been married. She thought, "He's happy here . . . He doesn't look moody or resentful . . . How could anyone be other than happy in a climate like this? But somehow I thought he wouldn't like regimentation . . . Why must I think these things now?"

She laughed quietly. "I see so much all at once, Jud! I see you and . . . and everything is different here, the houses and shrubs."

The station wagon was very new, very smart, very expensive. He seemed familiar with it as one is always with a car one drives a great deal.

When they were sitting side by side he leaned forward and kissed her warm cheek tenderly. "Take off your hat, darling. Girls down here never wear hats."

She pulled off her hat with a gay, reckless gesture. "I don't know where you're taking me. I don't care . . . Let it be strange. Let it be anywhere." She looked at him, her long, candid, sweet look. "From Paula's in May to Florida in October."

He looked at her quickly as though her words had shocked him. "Um . . . We have traveled far, haven't we? When I said that you were still the same, I meant that I knew you still loved me."

"And you?" For a second she felt a pain stab her . . . Suppose he didn't.

With surprising seriousness he said, "I love you more than anyone in the world, Temple. Your letters have been a real inspiration. I didn't know anyone could have such beautiful thoughts." He smiled again and took her hand. "Let's go, shall we? We'll ride around a bit. I'll tell you what plans I've been able to make for you. You don't have to accept them. That's why we'll talk about them before we do anything. Happy?"

"I'm so happy it hurts."

As she rose the passing scenes were blurred to her. Only Jud was alive and real and clear . . . and close.

He said, "I wish I didn't have to go into a long explanation but I—well, I'm not exactly a free agent here. Nor am I, to my mother's regret, more than a mere private in this man's army. The situation is precisely this: I am on night duty from midnight until 8 in the morning. That means I have to sleep in the morning and that I'm free the rest of the time until midnight again.

"The housing situation here is pretty bad. The rooming-houses are terrible and, of course, the big hotels haven't opened for the Winter season. But I have friends here and they've invited you to stay with them. They are friends of every man at the base, in fact. This car belongs to them. The husband is in Washington on a big defense job and his wife has stayed on here through the Summer mainly to keep her house open for the men at the base. She's a perfectly swell person and you'll be more than welcome. The house is big and she lives very informally. People do down here. At the moment only the wife is there . . . Mrs. Santos. . . . We call her Molly . . . All the men do. But your coming and going will be your own affair. You and I will be at the beach most of the time."

His proposal came as a distinct and rather unpleasant shock. She was disappointed because she had not thought it would be this way when she came. She had thought she would stay in a hotel and be free and her evenings would be spent with him. Having been a house guest of Fran's, she knew all too well the obligations of a guest in the homes of rich people and heartily disliked the role. But it was all too clear that Jud wanted her to be the guest of Molly Santos, and any plan she would suggest would probably not fit in with the schedule he had planned during her visit.

Probably because she was quiet for a few minute he said gently, "Temple, there is no way we can live together. I have tried in every possible way to think of something, but there is no way. I couldn't write that. I don't belong to you."

She said quickly, "I know. I thought of that, too. I'll go to Mrs. Santos', Jud."

He turned his head and smiled. "That's great! She's lovely and charming, old enough to be my mother, but just about the best friend I have here. A really generous and unselfish person. We'll be there in a few minutes . . . I'll go back to the base and change and come back for cocktails with you and Molly. Then you and I will go out to dinner."

"Then she's expecting me?"

"In a way, yes. I knew you'd agree with me that it's all around the best idea. I can keep the station wagon and get over to you in a jiffy. And you'll have every comfort and luxury."

She thought, "You always think of luxury, Jud. I never do. I came to be with you. I'm a wife coming to see her husband. I'm an army wife . . . You haven't said anything about my being YOUR wife."

(To Be Continued.)

HE WANTED A CRACK AT JAPS BUT SAYS ITALIANS WILL DO

(By International News Service)

HONOLULU—Whistling a lilting martial tune, Gustav de la Torre repacked his weatherd duffel bag and prepared to return to Mexico to join the army.

Gus actually was happy because Mexico and the Axis were at war. But Gus is that kind of a guy. He is a character.

"It is the Italians," he said eloquently, "They are my particular pet peeve. I fight them in Spain. And in the name of liberty, this time I fight them for keeps!"

For most of his 43 years Gus has been banging around the globe, running toward wars like an assidious ant after a hunk of candy. Between stints of professional soldiering he has had an intricate career of sailoring, tailoring, catering and bartending.

Gus Torre is a bartender-extraordinaire deluxe. He wears a monocle, talks like an impassioned poet and is father confessor for practically half the Pacific fleet. Gus has been around, and he is plenty wised-up on the human race.

He would be a perfect hero for a novel.

Born in Bilboa, now an enshrined Spanish battlefield, of a Spanish mother and a Scotch engineer father, Gus first tasted war in Mexico. The family moved there when he was a kid. In the Mexican revolution he was a lieutenant under Pancho Villa.

"Technically I was a capitalist," he related, "because my father owned much land. But I took up arms in behalf of the downtrodden peasants. One always must fight on one side or the other."

"Gus went to Los Angeles in 1919, a year later moved up to San Francisco, and in 1921 he went to sea. He sailed all seven of them, too.

Since, he has fought in Ethiopia and China, but it was the Spanish war that endowed him with most of his philosophy.

"From what I read in the papers, I decided I didn't like Franco," Gus said. "I just didn't like the man."

But Gus loved the land of his birth, so he went to New York from Los Angeles and enlisted in the Abraham Lincoln Brigade, famous Loyalist group. Monocle and all, he saw action first at Barcelona in 1936—was wounded by a bayonet—and met Italians at the Battle of Guadlajara.

"They routed magnificently," he grinned.

Blaming the current World war entirely upon the Spanish war, Gus declared this one could have been averted if the Democracies had given the Loyalists as much help as the Fascists gave Franco.

"It was a testing ground for World War II," he asserted. "The Germans proved that they were real fighting machines, veritable automatans. But the Italians—they were afraid of cold steel."

Franco today cannot give the Axis aid because "there is considerable undercover fighting still going on in Spain," according to Gus. He predicted that freedom-loving Spaniards, like all free-thinking people in the world, shortly will revolt against their oppressors especially against Hitler.

Gus was a construction worker at Midway Island last year. His boat returned to Honolulu on Dec. 7, and although they arrived unmolested, Gus was gravely disappointed. He has been waiting here for another crack at the Japs since.

But now that Mexico is at war, Gus de la Torres is happy again. He's going back to Mexico to join the army. He became an American citizen in 1933, but Uncle Sam won't take him because of his age, he said.

And Gus, with monocle in his eye, soon will be marching into battle again "in the name of liberty." The sailors around Honolulu will miss him. He made the best rum drinks in town!

FEMININE TRINKETS BECOMING MIGHTY SCARCE THESE DAYS

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Women's trinkets and trappings today are as scarce as Sunday drivers.

Girls shopping in downtown Washington stores are beginning to see the bottom of the counter beneath feminine commodities, as the supplies diminish like crops before a horde of locusts.

The stocking counters don't even have samples on display. The shelves are empty and only a few "experimental" rayon hose give the sales girls something to talk about when a customer comes by. Their voices echo across the counters and around the shelves.

A few expensive sweaters on the shelves in the sports department give the place a look of the last move in a checker game.

"But you'd better buy it," the sales girls urge. "There won't be any more coming in."

Evening shoes are non-existent, in fact, it is almost fifth column activity to ask for a pair.

"Well, what are we going to wear?"

"Paint over your old ones," the clerk answers as if there were no question about the matter, "and you know one doesn't have to go to a dance."

Oxfords on the table look as if one good trot down Washington's F street would bring the feet in intimate contact with the sidewalks. Heavy leather "brogans" are unpatriotic. If you own a pair, the passing pedestrians look at you much like the bus riders look at an automobile driver, with that deadly where - did - you - get-that-"X"-card look in their eyes.

Even the "junk" dealer is suffering from the war. The plastics used in the gay decorations are on more important duty in an airplane's hull.

The once over-worked girls selling girdles in the lingerie department, sit on the chairs placed for the convenience of the customers.

The last stand of the girdle manufacturers in an effort to carry on, is the Victory girdle, a try at helping maintain flattering figures in the face of no rubber and no silk. It lies neglected on the counter.

No woolen dresses. No cockeyed plaid hats. Just a splurge of cottons, numerous signs asking you to carry your bundles home. And a letter at home from the department store, asking you to pay all your bills and not charge again if possible.

Pineapple, caramel and chocolate sundaes are vestiges of the drug store soda fountain's heyday. A tuna fish sandwich is passing to extinction with the American buffalo, and coffee will soon need a ration card.

Doughnuts are unsweetened, and most of the cookies taste as if the shadow of a sugar bag passed over the mixing bowl.

Washington knows there is a war. Money is wild, and department stores are emptying rapidly.

LEGAL NOTICE BEFORE THE PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION OF OHIO

Application of George E. Hagenbuch and H. B. Stewart, Jr., Trustees of The Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railway Company and The Northern Ohio Railway Company, Debtors, for Authority to Abandon Less-Carload Freight Service on the Lines of Railroad Operated by Them.

Docket No. 12,209

The undersigned have filed with the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio in the above entitled docket an application to abandon less-carload freight service on the lines of railroad operated by them. The Commission has assigned this application for public hearing on Thursday, November 5, 1942 at 10:00 A. M., Eastern War Time, at the offices of the Commission in the Ohio Departments Building, South Front Street, Columbus, Ohio

GEORGE E. HAGENBUCH and H. B. STEWART, JR., Trustees of The Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railway Company and The Northern Ohio Railway Company, Debtors.

Life Story.

"The Pride of the Yankees," Gary Cooper's starring vehicle at the Ohio, traces the life of Lou Gehrig from the time he was an eager 11-year-old kid playing baseball on vacant lots along Amsterdam avenue in New York to manhood and fame as the renowned first baseman of the New York Yankees. The most memorable day in Gehrig's career climaxes the picture, "Lou Gehrig Day," when crowds packed the Yankee stadium in July 1939 to bid farewell to the "greatest Yankee of them all." Teresa Wright has the part of Gehrig's wife and the cast includes Ray Noble's orchestra and the dancers, Veloz and Yolanda.

Broadway Musical.

A boxing champion turns dancer in "Footlight Serenade," the Madison headliner with Betty Grable, Victor Mature and John Payne. Mature has the leading role and the supporting cast includes Jane Wyman and Cobina Wright, jr., who vie with Betty for the affections of Payne and Mature. Robin and Rainger wrote the songs for the picture and Hermes Pan, dance director, appears with Miss Grable in several routines. Richard Dix in "Tombstone," is the second attraction.

Gunman Theme.

Veronica Lake and Alan Ladd are featured in "This Gun for Hire," showing at the Ritz. Ladd plays a young killer who forces Miss Lake to act as a shield when chased by detectives and then does the unexpected. Robert Preston has the role of the detective-sweet heart of Miss Lake. "Broadway," with George Raft and Pat O'Brien is the second film.

Comedy Drama.

Shirley Temple gets mixed up with a socialite family in "Miss Annie Roonie," the Park attraction, which portrays the charming young granddaughter of a retired policeman and the daughter of a ne'er-do-well inventor father. Her jitterbugging with her own class is cut short by the advent of Dickie Moore from Sutton Towers in New York City who invites her to show the boys and girls of his own set how its done. Guy Kibbee and William Gargan are in the cast. Brian Donlevy and Miriam Hopkins appear in "A Gentleman After Dark," the co-feature.

CITY SCHOOLS START HECTIC RACE FOR SCRAP

Victory Banners To Be Given Along With N-J Trophy To Winning Schools.

amount of scrap collected by the pupils during the week. Funds obtained when the scrap is sold will be used by pupils to buy war stamps or turned over to a war service organization, Miss Margaret Caywood, director of the school, said today.

Supt. Miller of the city schools said today that $5 worth of war stamps will be awarded monthly to the school which buys the largest amount of stamps and bonds. The awards will begin this month and continue until the end of the school year.

Here are comments from school officials on the week's campaign:

Bowman, E. W. Kissell, principal, "Bowman school collected seven tons last week. The pupils are very enthusiastic and I'm sure Bowman will finish at the top or somewhere near there in the trophy competition."

Bushnell, Roy Spatka, principal, "Bushnell will be in their pitching in a big way. We have gathered up a big pile of scrap and hope to get a bigger one this week."

Carpenter, Dean Rex, principal, "We've been working hard at it and we're going to work harder this week to win the trophy."

Hedges, Glen L. Robinson, principal, "Hedges has won a lot of trophies and the school is going to put forth every effort to win this one."

Newman, Jesse Beer, principal, "We are having a meeting to organize this afternoon and we're going to try our best to win that trophy for Newman."

Brinkerhoff, C. C. Secrist, principal, "We hauled away nearly two tons of scrap last week and we're going to try hard to win the prize this week?"

Western, J. M. Clark, principal, "I don't believe that the contest should be set up on the basis of just this week—some schools put on an intensive drive last week. Therefore, I think that both weeks should be counted. We are going to get in as much as we can to win." (The pennant awards cover the two-week collection.)

West Fifth, W. W. Blauser, principal, "We are continuing the regular drive and of course are making a special effort Wednesday when students will go out and get as much as they can find to win."

Prospect, G. W. Taylor, principal, "The trophy adds to the incentive of gathering up material. The idea of having something for the school is much better than awarding something just for the individual. It makes pupils cooperate as they should. We're doing our best."

Johnny Appleseed, G. W. Harmony, principal, "We'd like to win, the children are all interested. We'll do everything we can to help in this collection and the students feel that way, too. One boy has three tons promised him."

John Simpson Junior High, Irwin Brune, assistant principal, "The trophy seems like an excellent idea to encourage children to bring in the scrap. We're trying to get poundage from larger articles."

St. Peter's, Msgr. R. C. Goebel, "I am sure that the pupils of St. Peter's grade and high school will enter whole-heartedly into the scrap metal campaign because they realize its importance. Parents and teachers will cooperate to make the campaign as successful as possible."

Country Day School, Margaret Cayford- principal, "The children of Country Day school are organized to carry on a successful scrap drive and will do their utmost to make it a success."

Senior high, Herman D. Bishop, assistant principal, "The enthusiasm is beginning to boil up and the boys are getting truck orders. As for winning the trophy, I think we'll be there when the count is taken."

Woodland, C. A. Divelbiss, principal, "We have our districts mapped out for Wednesday and are all ready for a big drive. I'd like to have Woodland get the trophy . . . we have a place for it."

sedan, was parked alongside the highway when an unidentified motorist stopped to see if he could offer aid.

In reporting the incident to police, the motorist said the occupants of the car told him to "beat it." He said the sedan was "full of guns."

Guard Priest After Telephone Threat

CHICAGO — (INS) — While the manhunt for the seven desperadoes who shot their way out of Stateville prison was intensified, police in Fort Wayne, Ind., stood guard today over Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas M. Conroy who reported receiving a death threat from the gangsters.

The police guard was rushed to Fort Wayne from Chicago after Msgr. Conroy, director of the Cathedral of Immaculate Conception there, reported receiving an anonymous telephone call yesterday from a man who lisped:

"This is the Touhy gang. Stay where you are. We are going to get you today or tonight."

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney who ordered the guard, said he believed the threat came from the escaped felons whose leader, Roger Touhy, blames Msgr. Conroy for the conviction of the gang in the John "Jake the Barber" Factor kidnaping trial.

A jury in the gang's first trial for the Factor kidnaping disagreed after an Indianapolis priest testified he had talked with Touhy who denied any connection with the crime. The priest, however, did not testify in the second trial in which Touhy and another of the fugitives, Basil Banghart, were sent to prison.

Since that time the gang has been seeking vengeance, Touhy blaming Msgr. Conroy for dissuading the priest from testifying in the second trial, according to Courtney.

COASTGUARDSMEN JUST GRIN AS SEA SMACKS SUB-BUSTER

(By United Press)

ABOARD A COAST GUARD CUTTER OFF EAST COAST—The boys who run these 80-foot sub-busters are doing a man's job.

These coastguardmen grin at everything and have the time of their lives.

Their boats are sturdy, but they are as buoyant as a cork and when the seas run high they have to stay on deck because the forecastle pitches like a broncho.

I was with them when they were having a "meanum" blow. The seas were running from 15 to 30 feet, which meant that the "40" boats" would climb a crest, reach out for the next one and fall flat with a smack that would jar your eye-teeth.

A cross wind is even worse. You roll so much you can reach down and dangle your hand in the water—if you're not holding on for dear life. We were in both a running sea and cross wind, but those youths of 17 and 18 just laughed when they hit a big, rough one.

When the seas get too rough, the men live on sandwiches, but because we had only 15-foot waves, we ate below. The meal was as hard to keep up with as a ring on a merry-go-round and almost as hard to stab.

Because of the resounding smacks we were taking, we would sit down, rise about four inches and then make a crash landing.

Late out of four different plates as they went by. By holding your coffee in midair you could keep it in the cup, and if you were fast enough you could sip it without knocking out a tooth.

No matter how tough it is, those boys are ready for anything and a trip through an unexpected minefield just means a bigger grin than usual.

PARENTAL PUNISHMENT

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UP) — Bob Mims, 15, ran into a novel penalty when he wrecked the car his father had just bought him. Deputies said his father tore up his driver's license and declared, "This won't happen again soon."

GETS EVEN WITH HITLER

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UP) — A Bavarian waiter here relishes knitting sweaters and socks for Uncle Sam's soldier boys. He has a good reason. He learned to knit during a two-year stay at Hitler's Dachau concentration camp.

Substitute Rayon For Cotton As Fabric In Tires

the army had proven that "high tensile rayon possesses a greater resistance to heat in big army truck tires."

"But why should we embark on an untried scheme in the middle of a war?" asked Sen. Kenneth D. McKellar, D., Tenn.

"Did the big rayon companies have any voice in this decision to change over to rayon instead of cotton?" queried Sen. Tom Stewart, D., Tenn.

"Do the big rayon companies have an representatives on the WPB? Did they help make this decision?

"I understand that they do," Jeffers said. "But during a war I am assuming that America can trust Americans. I am assuming that all these men, like me, are doing the best they can for this country and forgetting personal interests.

"There is always a question of motives, however. I'm getting around me the best men in the industry. I'm assuming they can be trusted. And I'm not going to be influenced by anybody, anywhere, anytime."

The plan to substitute rayon for cotton in tires was proposed by rayon manufacturers several months ago. Jeffers' disclosure was the first public revelation that WPB had adopted it. Smith asserted before the hearing that "this seems like a plan on the part of the rayon companies to capitalize on the war."

FAIR WARNING

Our nation's war production has first call on all raw materials and factories. This has curtailed production for civilian use . . . a sacrifice we are all glad to make for victory. This Fall, on some of the items in our great Ward Week sale, we may have to limit quantities sold to any one person. Ward Week values will be as great as ever . . . but, please, buy only the things you need.

Ward Week is a nation-wide sale, planned months in advance by all of the 650 Montgomery Ward stores throughout the country. By working far ahead, by combining their orders, these Montgomery Ward stores are able to secure quality merchandise at tremendous savings. That's why millions of Americans wait for Ward Week every year to buy their Fall and Winter needs. This year, we are happy to offer once again the values which have made Ward Week America's Greatest Sale. Throughout our store, prices are cut far below the "ceilings" established by the government. Join the crowds . . . see these values yourself. Shop and save in Ward Week.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

(One of a series by Hollywood Columnist Robbin Coons, who is making a tour of U. S. A., cross-country.)

Heading east from Hollywood—The lovely blond ingenue down the train aisle looks like Veronica Lake—with an aura of magnolia blossoms. You can't see 'em but they're there.

Maybe it's her voice. Southern. Honey and molasses. She's in a hissie (as they say down in Texas) and she's headin' for Alabama. She's in a hissie because here she's been away all summer and she's bein' late for school and ALL her clothes need cleanin' and she won't have a THING to wear, what WILL she do? And the train's SURE to be late, and if she doesn't make her train out of N'Yawlins what WILL she do? She's so very perturbed it's no wonder half the soldiers stop by to cheer her up. She's queen of the car.

Coons

Car's crowded, of course. All cars, uppers and lowers. Good-natured crowd, though, with no groaning about the absence of club cars, standing in line for the single diner, or the general discomfort of living, practically, in a single seat. The soldiers and sailors are used to it and the civilian travelers seem to have been educated to wartime necessities.

Right down the aisle there's a good-looking girl sounding a familiar note. She's showing a slip of paper to friends: "I went to a premiere back there," she says, "and I got all these — I tried to get Claudette Colbert too but they were swarming around her so." . . . Autographs.

A casting director couldn't find a heavy or a menace in all this gang. He might settle for the non-uniformed boy who spent an hour or so last night standing on his rights. One of those twice-sold berths. The other ticket-holder was a woman. "Why," said the ungallant one to the conductor, "should I take an upper — why doesn't she?" "Because, sir," said the conductor, "because she's a woman . . ." Only he said "Suh" when he said Sir.

Our invisible camera's eye spots a Gunn (Big Boy) Williams type — a big coast guardsman. Gunner's mate, 3rd class, his sleeve says. He's on transfer, solo, to Mississippi. Never traveled by train before. Last night was his first in a Pullman—upper berth. About six-foot-six, two feet wide, curled up in an upper. This a. m. he said, "I never expected to sleep in a sardine can," but added, philosophically, "you ought to see the berths on a destroyer."

These western sets are still plenty eye-filling, no matter how long you gaze at 'em from a train window. Mountains, desert, brush and cactus, mountains close and far away, and fabulous cloud-banks. . . . But the set-designing around little way stations hasn't improved any with the years.

PRESIDENT OF CHILE DELAYS HIS U. S. VISIT

Sends Message to Roosevelt Protesting Statement of Welles on Axis Aid.

(By United Press)

SANTIAGO, Chile — President Juan Antonio Rios postponed his long-scheduled good will visit to President Roosevelt today because of criticism made by Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles of Chile's attitude in the war.

A few hours earlier Argentina had announced that its ambassador at Washington, protesting Welles' criticism of Argentina, had asked for specific instances justifying the criticism, and Welles had declined on the ground of military necessity.

President Rios made his decision not to leave for Washington Thursday as scheduled after conferring for 10 hours at his official residence with cabinet members including Foreign Minister Ernesto Barros Jarpa, Interior Minister Paul Morales Beltrami and Economy Minister Pedro Alvarez.

President Rios prepared a message to President Roosevelt, announcing his decision, and Benjamin Cohen, Chilean ambassador to Bolivia, handed it to United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers.

The message to President Roosevelt said:

"His Excellency President Roosevelt:

"I appreciate deeply the friendly and comprehensive statements your excellency designed to formulate to the Chilean ambassador regarding the cordial spirit with which you would receive the president of Chile, whose sincere Americanophile disposition — the same as his government's—your excellency deigns to acknowledge.

"But I feel the regretful need to express to your excellency that the latest official reports spread in the United States on the international position of my country, which had created an unfruitful atmosphere, has made it advisable for me to postpone for the present the honor of visiting your excellency.

"I renew to your excellency the expression of my sincere gratitude for the honor of your invitation and of my regret at being forced to postpone my visit due to causes so alien to my will.

"I reiterate to your excellency my homage and my admiration."

FACE CHARGES

Two Arrested After Police Check Cafe Complaints.

Police were called to two North Main street cafes early Sunday morning and late last night on reports of fighting, two combatants being taken into custody.

At 12:16 a. m. Patrolmen Floyd Bowers and William Colby found a Shelby man on the walk in front of the Busy Bee cafe, 230 North Main street. A bartender told the patrolmen that the man fell on the sidewalk and suffered minor cuts when he was ejected from the cafe after threatening to strike the bartender with a bottle. He was treated at General hospital and released.

Cleih Lambert, Kentucky, is being held at city jail pending investigation as to why he has no draft registration card. He was arrested last night by Patrolmen John Gilbert and Glen Adams on a charge of engaging in a fight with Wayne Kiner, Butler, at the Greenleaf cafe, Sixth and Main streets, who was also being held.

HONORS FLYING OHIO OFFICERS

Army Gives Silver Star To Three Buckeyes Among Group of 32 Heroes.

(By Associated Press)

GEN. MARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — Three Ohio lieutenants were among a group of 32 officers and men of the United States army air force awarded the Silver Star for "gallantry in action" General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The awards were made by Maj. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied air forces in the southwest Pacific, and covered actions in battle areas throughout this part of the Pacific.

Ohioans honored were:

Second Lieut. John A. Kelting, Toledo: he piloted a P-40 fighter against Japanese bombers near Darwin on April 4 and repeatedly attacked one enemy plane until it crashed in flames.

Second Lieut. Oliver B. Vodrey of East Liverpool, who, flying a P-40, attacked a formation of Japanese bombers over Darwin on Sept. 30, shooting one enemy plane down after setting it afire.

Second Lieut. Richard H. Dennis, Cleveland, who helped intercept a formation of Japanese bombers over Darwin April 25, and shot down one enemy plane into the sea after a long running fight. Dennis also piloted a P-40.

DECLARES 'POLICING' OF RAW MATERIALS NEEDED AFTER WAR

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — The National Metal congress and exposition opened today in Public Hall and among the distinguished industrialists to arrive for it was 65-year-old William P. Woodside of Detroit who is vice president in charge of research for the Climax Molybdenum company.

In an interview Woodside stated that if there is to be peace after the war, an international agency that will "police" world supplies of raw materials that could be used in armament manufacture must be established.

Asserting that the government's industrial direction of the present was far superior to that of the First World war, Woodside, who began his career as an apprentice blacksmith 50 years ago, pointed out that government was utilizing the services of a great many more technical experts and practical, trained industrialists in war production than were available for this work in World War I.

The exhibit of more than 300 displays is mostly machinery and equipment en route to war plants and will be delivered immediately after the show.

William H. Eisenman, secretary of the American Society for Metals and managing director of the congress and exposition, estimated that more than 3,000 out-of-town visitors will arrive for the event today.

ILLNESS FATAL

Widow of T. C. Styert, Former Service Director, Dies.

Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Styert, 57, widow of the late Tracy C. Styert, former service-safety director, died at General hospital at 6:25 a. m. today after a brief illness.

Mrs. Styert was born in La Buffe, Erie county, Pennsylvania April 18, 1885, and had been a resident of this city for the past 25 years. Her husband had been a retail meat dealer in Mansfield for a number of years.

She was an active member of St. Paul's Lutheran church and of the Dolly Madison club, Democratic women's organization.

Surviving are one sister, Mrs. Frank W. Oestermeyer of Cleveland, two brothers, R. G. Greene of New Kensington, Pa., and William A. Greene of Hubbard, Ore., also one nephew, Lieut. Earl C. Greene, who made his home with Mrs. Styert for 24 years. He is now serving with the armed forces overseas.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Funefrock Funeral home Wednesday at 2 p. m. Rev. Martin L. Wappner will conduct the service in the absence of Rev. Herman L. Gilbert. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Up and Down THE STREET

Acquaintance with their Latin American neighbors will be made by third, fourth and fifth grade pupils of Country Day school without leaving the classroom this year through a course of social study introduced by Mrs. Ethelouise Carpenter, a new instructor, who has taught in Bolivia. The children have already embarked on their trip after learning about passports, visas, travelers checks and the booking of passage. They will first visit islands in the Caribbean, keeping a daily diary of their adventures, and will set up an exhibit of Latin American products to lend reality to their experiences.

Now engaged in a round of planning for business girls' clubs is Miss Virginia Finefrock, new business and professional women's secretary at the Louiseville, Ky., Y. W. C. A. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Finefrock, 766 Park avenue west. Miss Finefrock will have charge of activities for three clubs, each having about 75 members. For these groups she is planning extensive courses in folk dancing and home nursing. The new secretary obtained her master's degree last year at Ohio university and prior to that time was engaged in Y. W. C. A. work in Akron.

GIVEN EXAMS

Ontario Cafeteria Workers Being Tested for Typhoid.

Workers in the Springfield township centralized school cafeteria at Ontario were being examined today as the city-county health department sought the cause of two typhoid fever cases in that neighborhood.

School-wide immunization is being considered by school authorities and urged by Dr. W. B. Wild, health commissioner.

Meanwhile word is awaited from the state health department laboratories on cultures submitted last week in connection with the two definite cases and several border-line cases.

NAMED HEAD OF HOME AT XENIA

Legon Post Commander to Become Superintendent Nov. 1.

XENIA—(UP)—Floyd R. Hartpence of Westerville, a past commander of the Ohio American Legion, will become superintendent of the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Orphans' home on Nov. 1.

Hartpence was appointed to the $3,600 a year position by the home's board of trustees last night. He will succeed F. R. Woodruff who resigned to enter the army chemical warfare service as a captain.

Hartpence has been a history teacher at McKinley Junior high school, Columbus, for 15 years. He was graduated from Ohio State university in 1917 and served over seas during the World war.

WIFE IN RENO

Sues Foster Son of Ickes For Divorce; Wed in 1939.

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Robert Harold Ickes, 28, foster son of Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior, said his wife had established residence at Reno, Nev., and entered a divorce suit.

Mrs. Ickes, 22, the former Marcelle Levine of Chicago, has been a ballroom dance instructor here. Ickes is a special clerk for the Duquesne Light company. The couple married in the spring of 1939 at East Liverpool, O.

CAR OVERTURNS

Trolley's Upset at Akron Injures Motorman, 13 Others.

AKRON — (AP) — A street car overturned just outside Akron while on a run to Barberton yesterday, injuring 13 passengers and Motorman V. A. Lamb.

The motorman said the accident occurred when an automatic switch failed to operate properly.

240 MILLION ANNUAL BOOST UNDER STUDY

Union Dues Question Also To Come Up as Convention Enters 2nd Week.

(By International News Service)

CINCINNATI—Intent on building up a new labor union with several million members, John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers today started the second week of their 37th convention ready to demand wage increases totaling more than $240,000,000 a year for the nation's 600,000 coal miners.

The report of the convention scale committee on wages was expected to be read to the convention today or tomorrow.

The scale committee, which has 272 different resolutions on wages before it, never in the past has recommended a specific amount of a pay boost but simply empowered the executive board of the UMW to enter into negotiations with the coal operators for higher wages. Most of the resolutions before the committee asked for a $2 a day boost, from $7 to $9.

The scale committee report at the current convention was not expected to mention any sum but leaders and statisticians of the UMW predicted that once wage negotiations start Lewis will ask for a pay raise amounting to more than $240,000,000 a year, despite President Roosevelt's order freezing wages.

Another big question still to be settled by the convention was the issue of raising miner's dues from $1.00 to $1.50 a month. The miners already are paying $1.00 a month dues and a 50 cent a month assessment but Lewis recommended that the $1.50 be put on a permanent basis.

Delegates to the convention while approving Lewis' recommendation were expected to demand that a bigger share be returned to the local unions. A hot floor fight may develop, it was forecast.

Meanwhile, the UMW high command quietly worked over plans for an organizing drive in the fields where District 50 now has members. District 50, the "catch-all" division of the miners union, has started organizing 94 different industries, including dairy farmers.

Senator Taft Off On Pre-Election Speaking Campaign

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft, Ohio Republican, started out on a pre-election speaking tour today, even though he is not up for re-election this year.

Most of his appearances will be in Ohio, although the trip will take him as far west as Montana. In Ohio, he will speak on beahlf of all G.O.P. candidates.

Some Washington observers regard Taft as a likely contender for the presidential nomination in 1944, when he completes his six-year senate term. He was Ohio's "Favorite Son" Republican candidate in 1940.

Taft speaks today at Aberdeen, N. D. He will speak at Helena, Mont., Wednesday, and at Grand Island, Neb., on Friday. On Oct. 28, he will address a Republican meeting at Indianapolis.

His Ohio schedule, still incomplete, calls for speeches at Coshocton, Oct. 20; Steubenville, Oct. 22; Canton, Oct. 23, and Mt. Vernon, Oct. 27.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HOW MANY ARE SURE?

Vulnerability is a mighty factor in considering whether to pass or to overcall a bid at your right Many an opponent, who seldom even considers doubling your overcall if you are not vulnerable, is ready to think about cracking down on you when you are vulnerable. At such a time, you must weigh carefully your prospects in case you find your partner with a virtually blank hand, and the other side giving you the old whipsaw with practically all of the outstanding strength

1. ♠ 8 5 ♥ A K 6 4 2 ♦ A 7 5 ♣ 6 3 2

2. ♠ 8 5 ♥ Q J 10 9 8 3 ♦ K Q J ♣ 3 2

Those two hands illustrate emphatically the main difference between a sound opening bid and a sound overcall No. 1 would be a good original bid, in any system, with its top trick content and a promising suit, whereas No 2 would not be, due to lack of defensive trick strength

But, to overcall a hostile 1-Spade at your right with No. 1 would be unthinkable to an advanced player, whereas a 2-Heart overcall on No. 2 would be viewed by most of them as thoroughly sound and well worth trying Why?

First of all is the negative reason. If you are doubled with No 1, you may take only four tricks and be down four, at a cost of 1100 points. With No. 2 you are almost certain to take six tricks and be down only two at the outside, for a maximum loss of 500. And, to set you that badly, the opponents would probably have to give up a slam.

Second is the positive reason. There is a quite fair chance for a game with No. 2 if your partner has nearly an opening bid, with a fortuitous fit. With No 1 his chance of holding enough to produce a game is lower Also with No. 2 you require little help from him to make 2-Hearts, whereas with No 1 you need quite a bit.

In a nutshell, total playing tricks rather than high ones, are most important when making an overcall.

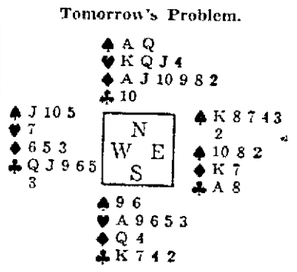
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer East. Neither side vulnerable.)

If East's diamond K wins the first trick, and he returns the suit in hope of a ruff by West, how should South try for all the rest of the tricks at hearts?

Soldiers Can Have Cartoons Or Art Right in Camp.

AUGUSTA, Ga—(U P)—Whether the men in the 22nd Infantry are comic book fans or prefer the art galleries, they can keep up their interest—thanks to Lin Streeter and Red Robin.

Pvt. Red Robin is a member of the Zuni tribe, ancient Indian group discovered by Coronado 300 years ago Robin attended art school in Denver and studied uder John Sloan, high ranking American painter. He has exhibited at the Mueseum of Modern Art, the Brooklyn Museum and several other outstanding galleries.

At present he is working on the rough sketches of a mural depicting the progress of the 22nd Infantry, to which he is attached.

Streeter, also recently in the 22nd Infantry, is the creator of comic book super-supers. He is doing his stuff now for the "Double Ducecr," the 22nd Infantry's mimeographed publication.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1942.

Each time a motorist turns a wheel in unnecessary driving, he must realize that it is a turn of the wheel against our soldiers and in favor of Hitler.—Leon Henderson.

America, 450 Years After Discovery

BY SO SMALL a typographical change as that of transposing the second and third figures, 1492 becomes 1942—yet what an amazing transformation has been wrought in America since that October day, four hundred and fifty years ago, when Columbus caught his first glimpse of this hemisphere.

Whether or not it was Columbus who was the original "discoverer" of America is unimportant, as it was recognizedly his findings that led to later adventurous voyages from the Old World, followed by exploration, colonization, seizure from the Indians, agricultural, industrial and transportation development, and all progressive steps along the way from 1492 to 1942.

Early inhabitants of this newly discovered country came from many lands, some to exploit, some as convicts of whom their own countries wished to be rid—but, in the main, honest, earnest people who sought the greater freedom and opportunity which they hoped to find in this new land.

Descendents of all of these classifications have come down through more than four centuries to form the present diversified pattern that forms the United States of America, with its own brilliant record of an experiment in democracy that has covered more than a century and a half of constitutional self-government.

For many years immigration accounted for a large percentage of population gains in this country, with almost uniform willingness of those who came from other parts of the world to learn the ways of America and to sincerely pledge allegiance to their adopted land—and it was through the industry, initiative, determination and loyalty of many who came as aliens that much of this nation's progress was made possible.

Now, for the first time in history, the 130,000,000 people of the United States, plus all others on the two continents of the Western Hemisphere, find themselves in a position not unlike that of the Indians during the period that followed the discovery of America.

In Europe, under leadership of a man known as Adolf Hitler, a tremendous fighting force has been assembled by people who have been made to believe that they are "superior" to all others on earth, and who seek to place the entire world under their domination.

The people of the United States, much against their will, have been forced into a great war to protect themselves against such subjugation—and to aid in restoring processes of orderly government in other parts of the world where might has temporarily triumphed over right.

Being intended merely as a mention of today's observance of Discovery day, prediction of the probable outcome of the present struggle would be out of place—but we're at least in much better position to carry a war to successful termination than were the Indians when Columbus found them here.

Foresighted Advertising Policy

MERCHANTS and manufacturers, who were for a time in something of a quandary as to what to do about advertising, because of priorities, possible stock shortages, and the like, have reached the conclusion that no matter how small the immediate sales of some articles might be, they dared not let the public forget their stores or products.

In spite of shortages in some lines there is still a vast volume of needed merchandise, and there are also many products which have been popularized by advertising and which are only temporarily off the market, or available in limited quantity.

So, after giving the subject careful thought, many merchants and manufacturers are now devoting some of their usual advertising space to ads for war bonds, to getting out scrap metal, or other patriotic purposes. That is a very valuable thing to do, helping both to win the war and to keep the firm name in sight.

Many, also, are using what is called "institutional advertising." That is to say, space is given in explanation of the company's products. The public learns how the product is made, what it is used for, the history of its invention, and of improvements in its manufacture. The specific article cannot, perhaps, be sold at this time, but the general nature of the business is made plain to the consumer, who likes to know of such things.

So educational advertising is useful to the seller as well as pleasant and informative to future buyers, which explains why it is growing in popularity.

Coffee Drinkers Miss Stimulant

AN IDEA of the habit-forming qualities of even a mild stimulant is gained from the mad rush that has been made by some coffee addicts for the dwindling stocks of that popular beverage.

Many people report being "shaky," or suffering from a headache, if deprived of their customary coffee at breakfast, and at other times during the day, possibly not stopping to think that they had become dependent on the brain and heart stimulant provided by the caffein contained in coffee and also present in tea.

Sad awakening coming to those who have overbought and are hoarding coffee packed in paper bags is due to the fact that ground coffee, or even the roasted coffee bean, deteriorates rapidly in flavor because of evaporation of oil, and will become stale and queer-tasting within a couple of weeks unless vacuum-packed.

Supplies of vacuum-packed coffee are virtually off the market now, and in some instances the dribble of such brands is divided, in half-pound doles, to regular customers.

Some cities report "haggard persons, exhibiting signs of coffee starvation," haunting grocery stores and begging to be permitted to buy a little coffee, much in the way that morphine, opium and whisky addicts plead for favorite sedatives or stimulants when deprived of them.

War interest in New York is said to have reached a point where little more is being heard about the world series.

It now appears that Washington is behind the war effort—considerably behind, in fact.

Expect Few Changes In Congress

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON —Though there are always upsets in nation-wide elections the best opinions, obtainable here at the political hub, are that there will not be as many missing faces as an actual result of the election, when the next congress convenes, as there will be due to primaries and conventions.

In the senate, for instance, there are very few close contests in prospect. The Democrats are hoping to retire Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, and C. Wayland Brooks, of Illinois, to private life. Privately they admit little hope of any other gain. The G. O. P. is hoping to knock off Prentiss M. Brown, of Michigan; Theodore F. Green, of Rhode Island; and Clyde L. Herring, of Iowa.

But it is very difficult to find a Democrat who is willing to bet even money against either Lodge or Brooks. Similarly it is difficult to find Republicans willing to lay even money against Brown, Green or Herring.

Yet these are really the doubtful seats. True, there is the case of Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, running independent again, but with the endorsement of President Roosevelt and no serious Democratic opposition. There might be a miracle which would put a Republican in that seat. It would seem about due, on the old doctrine of the pitcher which went to the well once too often. But the Nebraska electorate has become so used to voting for Uncle George every six years that it seems likely the same thing will happen again. Uncle George has been promising to retire since 1914. He just doesn't get round to it.

MASSACHUSETTS politics is always perplexing—and dubious. The administration is most anxious to beat young Lodge. He is too often embarrassing. He not only knows too much about the war, now since his service in North Africa, and also about domestic issues, but he has some of the smartest political advisers extant. That is the reason the administration leaders persuaded Joe Casey, who had a sure Democratic district for his house seat, to make the try against Lodge.

Again, the habits of voters over a lifetime will help Lodge. The Bay State ballot markers are used to having a Lodge and a Walsh in the senate. It is the normal thing. For many years they voted for the grandfather of the present Lodge—the one who led the Republican senators who "broke the heart of the world" by preventing American participation in the League of Nations. And since the days of the last war they have also voted for David I. Walsh.

There are those who say that Walsh is very well satisfied to have a Republican colleague, and thus be the only Democratic senator from the Bay State. Be that as it may, there is no doubt that Walsh shed few tears when young Lodge was elected six years ago, for at that time Lodge's opponent was James M. Curley, one of Walsh's bitterest political enemies.

In Illinois the administration has been anxious to beat "Curly" Brooks, and the Chicago Tribune, FDR's pet hate among newspapers, is just as anxious to reelect him. Brook's pre-Pearl Harbor record did not hurt him, apparently, in the primary, and his chances for the six year term seem better than fair.

* * *

OF ALL the senators who have survived the primaries and conventions the one in most danger from the election seems to be Prentiss Brown of Michigan, but the independent candidacy of Gerald Smith, old Huey Long and Father Coughlin lieutenant, gives even him a sporting chance.

'No Time To Fear'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

CROWDED DAYS. Bewildered days, too. New chores heaped on top of the old without a guiding blueprint. Everyone working like mad trying to choose the most important jobs.

But what is the most important job? What should come first for each of us in these fighting hours? I don't know. It depends, of course, on each person and his or her talents. But I do know of one thing which we must all put behind us . . . one thing on which we should not waste one second of time nor one ounce of energy—AND THAT IS FEAR.

Did you see that lovely and unforgettable movie, "Mrs. Miniver?" The story of a plain country wife in beleagured Britain—of any courageous wife anywhere, living her placid, pleasant existence in the sheltered hedgerows. The sweet, quiet days without rush or worry. Then suddenly, like a circling vulture, came the swooping horror of war. And the hedgerows were piled with ruin, the violets and primroses reeked with blood.

Here was a thing unthinkable, unprecedented even in the last war. No more unhurried, unworried hours with quiet laughter over the dinner table. No more safety in the sheltered garden. Every minute filled with driving necessity, cringing under the deadly screech of death. A hundred, a thousand things to be done, and only one pair of hands to do them. Hands like Mrs. Miniver, gentle, inexperienced, but endlessly brave.

Time. Time—that was what mattered so terribly when war struck England. Time to make the children safe. Time to save a boy from a clutching death. An hour, a minute, a second might make all the difference between life and that death. No warnings. No chance to decide what was the right or wrong thing to do. Time only to act as best one could. But above all else one thing was clear:

NO TIME TO WASTE IN FEAR.

Over and over little Mrs. Miniver said that to herself as she watched her boy take wings into the shadows; as she saw her husband depart on that dreadful voyage to Dunkirk; as she crouched in the bomb shelter, holding her screaming babies to her heart; as she knelt later looking at a white young face from which the laughter had forever gone.

NO TIME TO WASTE IN FEAR.

She wasn't trained. She didn't know the reason for nor the answer to this nightmare which had come upon the places and the people that she loved. But her simple mind and heart held one truth high and clear as a torch:

WHATEVER THE MISFORTUNE, THERE WAS NO TIME TO WASTE IN FEAR.

She would do what she could. She would give all she had of her slender, valiant energy. But she would not waste one particle of that energy or one second of her imagination on cowardice.

No time to waste in fear, as long as movies are remembered I think that line from "Mrs. Miniver" will flame in human hearts. No one of us can win this war alone. Perhaps we may not even see the end of it in our own lives. We certainly will never see the end of the demoralization it has wrought. As long as we live our lives will be cluttered with the ruins and we will be battling against its waste, hurrying as fast as we can to undo it. And for us, as for Mrs. Miniver, there will be scant time to choose or decide what we should do next. But one thing is sure:

THERE WILL NEVER BE TIME TO WASTE ON FEAR. WE CANNOT CONTROL THE CRUEL CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH ARE BRINGING THE HERITAGE OF RUIN WE MUST FACE. BUT WE CAN CONTROL OUR OWN TERROR . . . OUR OWN SURRENDER TO PANIC. AND WE CAN WRITE ACROSS THE SILLS OF OUR HEARTS

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Oct. 12, 1922.

Knights of Columbus celebrated Discovery day, with Herbert A. Criqui as master of ceremonies.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Toy, Japanese, stopped over in Mansfield for a visit.

Arthur C. Ward was injured when train hit his automobile at B. & O. Park avenue west crossing.

Farewell party was given for Mrs. Charles Palmer, soon to leave for new home in Long Beach, Calif.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Burns, Home avenue.

J. P. Snapp went to Columbus to attend convention of U. C. T. secretaries.

Degree team from Miriam Rebekah lodge went to Shelby to confer degrees on class of candidates.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Soon after midnight on Oct. 11, 1492, a sailor aboard the little vessel "Pinta" spied a light resembling a moving torch. Next morning the ships of Columbus' small fleet approached the shore of an island in the Bahama group. With the red robe of the Admiral of Spain thrown over his shoulder, the gallant mariner raised the standard of Spain and took possession of the land in the name of Ferdinand and Isabella.

Interpreting the War News

Pressing Needs on Other Fronts May Slacken Germans In Russia

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

LONDON—Hitler's announcement that he has achieved his main objective at Stalingrad and therefore will depend on bombardment rather than infantry to complete the operation of reducing the city would seem to me to cover a much more important issue than appears on the surface.

There is a sound reason in my view to believe he is preparing to weaken his position there by a heavy withdrawal of airpower for other and even more pressing purposes.

His peculiar statement, broadcast by a spokesman, obviously was calculated to prepare the German public for a slowing-down of the attack on Stalingrad and perhaps disappointment at the failure to capture this amazing colossus. Probably it also was intended to soften the disclosure of the extent of the huge German losses.

However, it is doubtful Hitler would thus tacitly admit the hiding he has been taking were it not for the necessity of making a quick shift in his plans. The only logical move of real magnitude would appear to involve his airforce, the major part of which he has been employing in the bloodiest and biggest siege of history.

* * *

MY REASONS for believing this represents his purpose are: ONE—The devastating, Anglo-American bombing raids against Nazi war industries and transport systems in western Europe are hitting the reich in a vital spot and hurting like the devil.

We have a fine illustration of this in the raid against the French industrial city of Lille by 100 of our great bombers, supported by a fleet of 500 British fighter planes.

The time has arrived when Hitler must try to halt these assaults and that would necessitate the withdrawal of warplanes from the Russian front.

TWO—The Nazi all-highest has been displaying jangling nerves over the fear of an Allied attack somewhere in western Europe.

He has been hastily strengthening his ground forces here, there and everywhere and he undoubtedly feels the necessity of repairing his own comparatively weak air defenses.

THREE—Because Hitler has been so engaged on the Russian front that he has had to quit large-scale bombing of Britain, John Bull naturally has been free to get ahead with the business of piling up resources.

FOUR—In order to throw every ounce of weight he could into the assault on Stalingrad, the fuehrer even stripped Rommel of air power. This not only deprived the Nazis of strength to continue the offensive against Egypt but also placed them in a most uncomfortable defensive position.

There is an ever-growing danger of Allied attack against the Axis army in Libya and Nazi warplanes must be sent there.

FIVE—Indications are that the Nazi chief hopes to be able to drive eastward along the foothills of the Caucasus mountain range to the Caspian sea in an effort to cut the Russian transport line from the Persian gulf. This would call for more air power since the Reds have been holding well in that area.

SIX—Apart from all these considerations, there is one which basically is of even more pressing importance. Hitler must at once begin to prepare for the great war of the air which most certainly will be waged next spring over western Europe. That battle is likely to determine the course of the war and length of time it will last.

Hitler's air losses in Russia have been terrific. In addition, he has had his first line warplanes in such constant action that his entire fleet is badly in need of rest and overhauling.

It will take him from now until spring to repair the damage and replace the losses. Indeed it's quite likely the intervening six months won't give him the time he needs especially since he may be called upon to conduct large-scale operations, both defensive and offensive, during the next few months.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—When congress gets around to voting medals for this war, it ought to strike off one for one of its own—Sen. Prentiss M. Brown of St. Ignace, Mich.

Senator Brown, turning his back on personal interests—perhaps his very political future—picked up the adminstration's sword and carried it through what threatened to be the most bitter legislative fight since World War II started. Senator Brown was author and sponsor of the administration-approved anti-inflation bill.

It was filled with political dynamite. It drew the fire of the powerful farm bloc, of which Senator Brown ordinarily is a member, and in which are many of his closest friends and associates. At its inception, there was no way of telling what repercussions it would have among the farm votes.

AND Senator Brown from the farm section of Michigan, the peninsula country, is facing re-election in November. His Republican opposition is Detroit's popular crusader against the rackets, Homer Ferguson. Senator Brown will need every farm vote he can get if he is to win. If he gave his personal interests a thought, it was not apparent in what he did or in what he said. He brought the administration anti-inflation bill to the floor of the senate. And he opened the debate on it in one of the most sincere and moving speeches that has been made in the Capitol chambers in months.

That Senator Brown knew what he was doing was apparent only in his solemn intensity throughout that speech. He faced the scowls of his friends. He pleaded in an atmosphere of tension that he could not help but feel. He took his colleagues by the collar and shook them and begged them to see the light.

It is said that no congressman's vote is ever changed by a speech. That is probably true. The legislative machinery just doesn't work that way. But the spade-work that Senator Brown did in that address undoubtedly bore some fruit in the 82-to-0 vote by which his bill was finally passed.

* * *

IN THAT long Thursday afternoon session, Brown didn't smile once. Even after adjournment, his face was clouded until in the halls a weather-beaten man walked up to him and grasped his hand. 'Senator, I'm a farmer, an Indiana corn and hog farmer, and by God I'm for you." It was then that Brown smiled.

Brown came to the Senate in 1936. He had served two terms in the House before he ran for the Senate. He had been the Mackinac county prosecutor for 12 years. He had interests in banking and lake shipping.

Both in the house and senate, he has been a quiet, genial fellow, given to hard work (he's a member of six committees and chairman of the committee on claims).

The anti-inflation measure is undoubtedly the most important piece of legislation he has sponsored. His handling of it proved his years here haven't been wasted.

Registrants Who Pass 45.

To clear up a point on which misunderstanding has been fairly general, we hereby report the news that men who have become 45 since they registered for the draft, last Feb. 16, still are subject to call to army duty.

This is not a new rule or a new interpretation of an old rule. We mention it because many people have got the idea somehow that when a man gets to be 45 he is automatically exempt from army service.

This war has forced revision of several impressions regarding the abilities of men of mature age. Whereas industrial employment managers used to give scant consideration to men over 40, many now admit that workers are at their prime at 45. As yet no sergeant has been heard to express a preference for 45-year-old fighting men, but in innumerable military jobs men of middle age have shown themselves superior to their sons. War is not exclusively a young man's game.—Akron Beacon Journal.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Why Call It Monday?

If Monday were spelled "Moonday," its story instantly would be apparent.

Monday, in other words, derives from the Anglo-Saxon Monandaeg, and with cognates in Dutch, German, Icelandic, Danish, Swedish and other languages, is a combination of moon plus day.

The second day of the week and following Sunday, which was named after the sun, Monday, was consecrated to the moon, anciently worshipped as the wife of Sol, so that she would not feel slighted, considering the honor bestowed upon her husband.

A Farmer's Diary

Parity

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

(First of Two Articles)

WHEN his brother Dick went to town to "make something of himself," Tom didn't mind. Tom was older, and his father depended on him to run the old home farm. Besides, Tom liked the land. He liked to plow and sow and reap and attend to animals. He liked the idea of being a co-operator with Nature in growing something so necessary as food. He had married a good wife, Bess, and they had several bright healthy children.

Dick worked in a shop. He ran a machine and drew his pay check at the end of every week. He was good at "looking out for number one." He and his buddies formed a workers' union, and insisted on a shorter work week and more pay. He got along and had one promotion after another. Presently he was living in a modern home of his own, with a furnace, two baths, a telephone and a garage in the basement. A maid did the housework while his wife went to clubs, studied music and played golf.

Sometimes, if Dick and Fanny, his wife, were not too busy, they liked to drive out to the country and stop at Tom's to buy fresh eggs and cream, but they congratulated themselves that they had been wise enough to get into a strata above milking cows, feeding chickens and pigs, and hauling out manure.

"The farm's the place to rear that big family of yours, though," Dick would say to Tom. "They can always eat, on a farm—and besides they can help out with the work—that's how I got my start!"

Dick had no children. When Tom's oldest boy graduated from high school, Dick—who was a foreman now—offered him a job. He was slightly miffed when his nephew did not take it.

* * *

TOM'S boys stayed on the farm. Two of them graduated from the state agricultural college. Tom's farm began to pay. Not fancy profits, certainly, but enough for modernizing the old premises. The old homestead blossomed out with steam heat, hardwood floors, an electric cooler and a rose garden. Modern machinery did the work quicker and easier; modern farming methods increased the amounts of grain, meat, milk and fiber Tom's acres produced. Even Dick and Fanny exclaimed delightedly, when they came to visit—and talked somewhat wistfully about the good old days, and of buying a little farm for themselves.

Food prices went up when the war started. Fanny became more outraged each time she went to market. Eggs were five cents apiece—milk and meat kept going up.

"Everybody knows the country is full of grain and milk and eggs," she told Dick hotly. "The farmers are getting rich at the expense of the rest of us! I think it's a shame, especially in wartime! It's unpatriotic! It's downright traitorous! Why what do you think Bess told me their milk check averages a month?" and she whispered a figure that made Dick bat his eyes.

"We didn't make much more in a year, when I was a boy," he said, "but old Tom couldn't go back on his early training. He's as patriotic as you are. Maybe I'd better look into this thing!"

"I wish you would," said Fan. "What's PARITY? Bess talked a lot about parity . . ."
